FEDERAL TAXATION STUDIED AS MEANS TO GOAL OF EAGLE

Heavy Levies on Gifts, Inheritances Only Envisage Social Aspects, as Labor, Trade Practices Not Included.

FAVOR IS MOUNTING FOR CODELESS NRA

Roosevelt, Cool to That Proposal, Turns Attention To Uniform Interstate Wage, Hour Laws.

By RICHARD L. TURNER.

WASHINGTON, June 6.—(AP)—Three proposals for maintaining NRA principles in a codeless business world—taxation, voluntary agreements and interstate contracts—emerged tonight from a welter of suggested remedies as subjects of official comment.

Congressional leaders prepared the abridged NRA, requested by President Roosevelt, for quick enactment and at the same time disclosed that the administration was studying gift and inheritance taxes as a method of keeping to the social goals of the defunct Blue Eagle.

While they carefully made room for voluntary codes in the legislation they were shaping, it was revealed that President Roosevelt had written State Senator Henry J. Parkman Jr., of Massachusetts, that he had ordered a special study made of the interstate compact proposal.

Labor Proposal.
In another effort to preserve labor's gains under NRA, the executive council of the American Federation of Labor, assembled in special session, considered a proposal under which conformation with specified labor standards would be required in the making of goods that move in interstate commerce.

Meanwhile, the possibility of a voluntary agreement system was in the fore. Despite an avowed lack of enthusiasm for the idea on the part of President Roosevelt, who feels that a small recalcitrant minority could easily defeat such a plan, the subject was very much alive on Capitol Hill. Elsewhere, too, it was a focal point of both action and comment.

Steel to Continue.
Harper Sibley, president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, and Arthur D. Whiteside, president of Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., and a former deputy administrator of NRA, discussed the steel industry took immediate steps to make it effective.

At New York, more than 200 members of the iron and steel industry, representing more than 90 per cent of the productive capacity in that line, decided individually and voluntarily, it was announced, to continue the practices followed under the NRA code.

House and senate administration leaders came to quick agreement on the substance of the legislation which President Roosevelt requested to trans-

MOTHER, TWO SONS KILLED IN PLANE

Relatives of Atlantan Are Found in Wreckage at Edge of Florida Forest.

MONTICELLO, Fla., June 6.—(AP)—Bodies of Mrs. Harman Lowman and her two sons were found in their wrecked plane tonight in the edge of a swamp where the craft crashed Tuesday while the party was en route from Miami to Andalusia, Ala.

Wreckage of the plane was located by aircraft which for many hours had combed the forest fastnesses of northwest Florida. A rescue party removed the bodies from the plane tonight and brought them to a funeral home here.

Members of the rescue party said the occupants of the plane apparently had been killed instantly. The ship had struck the ground at the edge of the swamp about nine miles south of here, bounced about a hundred feet, hurling the bodies some distance away.

Why the plane had crashed was not immediately ascertained. It was believed by aviators, the youthful pilot, John Ray Lowman, 25, who was flying his mother and brother, Byron, to visit relatives in Alabama.

One Dead, One Missing In Birmingham Fire

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., June 6.—(AP)—One man was killed, and five persons were injured and burned, two seriously, in a fire that early tonight destroyed the 31-year-old Florence hotel in downtown Birmingham.

An invalid who made his home in the hotel, but whose name was not immediately available, was believed to have been trapped in the rapidly spreading flames and perished.

Two women escaped by jumping from the fourth floor and miraculously escaped with only minor cuts and severe bruises.

U.S. GIVES $15,000, ENDS JUNE CRISIS IN FULTON RELIEF

FERA Approves Plan Recommended by Miss Shepperson; Unemployables' Budget Reduced.

Atlanta's 10,000 unemployables, dropped from the rolls of the FERA last Saturday, yesterday were assured of food and shelter during June at least, when the FERA in Washington authorized payment of $15,000 to the Fulton county welfare board.

FERA officials, acting upon recommendation of Miss Gay B. Shepperson, FERA administrator in Georgia, approved a plan whereby the federal agency not only will contribute $15,000 in cash during June, but also will help defray administrative expenses of the welfare board and contribute necessary foodstuffs and clothing.

The city of Atlanta contributes $40,000 monthly to the welfare board, while Fulton county gives $25,000. This, with the $15,000 from the FERA, will enable the board to shoulder the load of caring for the additional 10,000 unemployables.

Budgets To Be Cut.

It will be necessary to reduce average budgets of all the unemployables cared for by the welfare organization approximately 40 per cent, the slash being from $14.69 to $10.42. However, necessities supplied by the FERA will enable the welfare board to care for its cases on approximately the same scale as before, according to W. Eugene Harrington, board chairman.

Under the plan approved by Washington, the FERA will contribute $15,000 in cash; pay the salaries of all case workers in the employ of the

CONFEREES AGREE ON KENNESAW BILL

Tarver Provision Calling for Purchase of Necessary Land Is Accepted.

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.

WASHINGTON, June 6.—Senate and house conferees today accepted the Tarver provision of the Kennesaw mountain park bill which authorizes the purchase of all necessary land by the secretary of the interior.

After considerable debate, Representative McSwain, of South Carolina, chairman of the house military affairs committee, together with Representative Hill, of Alabama, and Senator McPherson, of Pennsylvania, conferees of the lower chamber, persuaded the senate conferees that establishment of the park would be greatly facilitated if the government was empowered to buy land in the vicinity of Kennesaw mountain which the interior department deemed essential for park purposes.

Senator Richard B. Russell Jr., of Georgia, who piloted the measure through the upper chamber, accepted the amendment restricting the use of appropriations for purchase of land as a means of getting the bill through.

He said that the bill would be forwarded to the White House for the signature of President Roosevelt.

High Army Officer Is Indicted in Bribe

WASHINGTON, June 6.—(AP)—A grand jury indicted today a high army officer charged with accepting fees from a firm lobbying against a pending tax bill from house military committee members predictions that "further action" would result from their investigation of the business practices of some army officers.

The officer indicted by the District of Columbia grand jury was Colonel Joseph I. McMullen, chief of the patents sections of the army.

The grand jury called his action "scandalous" conduct. Secretary Dern already had censured the officer for the alleged activity in a letter in which he said that if the case had not already been outlawed by the statute of limitations he would be subjected to court-martial proceedings.

Ace Federal Investigators Here Probing Racketeers' Tax Records

Men Who Caused Al Capone's Downfall Begin Work on Returns Made by 30 Atlanta Underworld Leaders.

Ace investigators of the United States Internal Revenue Department—the same men who brought about the downfall of Alphonse "Scarface" Capone—have been in Atlanta for the last 10 days checking on income tax returns of the city's leading racketeers, it was learned yesterday.

A list of 30 Atlanta racketeers, men who are operating number and lottery games, bootleggers and the like, was turned over to W. E. Page, internal revenue collector here, by Solicitor-General John A. Boykin for investigation more than three months ago.

Collector Page caused the various names on the list to be checked with his records and ascertained that although practically all of the racketeers had filed income tax returns in 1933, 1934 and 1935, only one reported a gross income running as high as $10,000.

Some of the city's number kings are reliably reported to have incomes ranging as high as $50,000 a year, while even the smaller racketeers take in as much as $10,000 annually through their "beyond the law" activities.

Believing that the local racketeers may not have filed true statements

INDUSTRY IN SOUTH PRAISED BY GOOGE

Labor Leader Lauds Employers for Upholding NRA Wage Standards.

Large manufacturers throughout the south have co-operated in maintaining code standards and those who have announced changes have rescinded their actions and gone back to NRA wage and hour scales, George L. Googe, southern representative of the American Federation of Labor, said here yesterday.

In Georgia, companies which announced and then rescinded changes were the Piedmont Cotton Mills at Egan Park, Hatt Brothers, of Macon, overhauling manufacturers, and the Princess Dress Manufacturing Company of Atlanta, he said.

In the Carolinas, Mr. Googe said, employers generally did not become panicky after the supreme court's decision and have not gone off code standards.

In eastern Tennessee, he found, numerous small manufacturers became panicky and went off code standards. He said he had hoped the situation there would be cleared up within the next few days.

Mr. Googe said cotton textile manufacturing plants in the south have maintained wages and hours generally, notable exceptions being, according to Mr. Googe, the Atlantic Cotton Mills in Macon, which has announced a 55-hour-a-week work schedule, and the Sibley Manufacturing Company in Augusta, which has reduced guaranteed wages 25 per cent. He stated labor is still hopeful they too will soon rescind their action and return to the spirit of the code.

"One of the greatest possible benefits that could come to Georgia industry and labor would be for Governor Talmadge to immediately withdraw his martial law proclamation of March 4," he said, "and to encourage industry and labor to settle their differences through conference and arbitration wherever they arise." Mr. Googe maintained.

He has observed conditions in the south as labor representative for the last eight years and "labor feels it is essential that the co-operative spirit be maintained in the crisis between employer and employee and is appreciating the action of the general run of employers."

MacDonald To Resign Today; Baldwin Is Seen as Successor

LONDON, June 6.—(AP)—A new cabinet, in which youth comes to the fore, was given unofficially this evening as follows:

Prime Minister—Stanley Baldwin, now lord president of the council.

Lord Chancellor—Viscount Halifax, now secretary for war.

Chancellor of the Exchequer—Neville Chamberlain, as at present.

Home Secretary—Sir John Simon, now foreign secretary. Simon is expected to be deputy leader of the house of commons.

$286,000 RANSOM IN U. S. CURRENCY WAITS IN HAVANA

Messenger's Tardiness Is Believed Cause of Failure To Effect Freedom of Multimillionaire.

(Copyright, 1935, by the Associated Press.)
HAVANA, June 6.—An effort to pay $286,000 ransom for the release of former Senator Antonio San Miguel, 78-year-old kidnaped multimillionaire, failed this afternoon when the messenger bearing the big bundle of bills could not contact the kidnappers.

Business associates of the aged rail magnate, who was seized with four servants yesterday afternoon, said they were confident the near-record ransom would be paid shortly.

Contact with the band of eight kidnapers at the place designated failed "probably because the messenger was slightly late in getting there with the money," they said.

Police late this afternoon revealed that Jose Franco, San Miguel's gardener, was kidnaped at the same time the wealthy financier, and three other servants were seized.

Money Quickly Raised.

There was no dithering with the captors, it was learned, as to the ransom price. The original demand was $286,000 and business associates hastily got the money together, in United States currency, as soon as they received word from the kidnappers.

While army secret service men denied reports that four suspects were held at Camp Columbia, police announced the arrest of Arturo Mujica, who, they said, sold the mango cart the kidnappers used to cover the snatch. The Associated Press learned exclusively that the band balked at releasing the money.

LAVAL SUCCEEDS IN CABINET TASK

Forms French Government With Elements From Right to Red.

PARIS, June 7.—(Friday).—A new coalition cabinet was finally formed today by Pierre Laval after a two-day crisis alarmed the majority of the chamber of deputies into promising support.

The swarthy 52-year-old Auvergnat completed his government lineup to the echo of strident shouts of royalists—"the king's henchmen"—clashing repeatedly with gendarmes in the boulevards.

Three persons were injured in disturbances accompanying the crisis, as the royalists staged their street demonstrations and taxpayers held protest meetings.

Laval added the premiership to his portfolio of foreign affairs in the official cabinet list. The other ministers are:

State, Pierre-Etienne Flandin, Edouard Herriot, Louis Marin; finance, Marcel Leguay; war, Colonel Jean Fabry; navy, Francois Pietri; air, General Victor Denain; justice, Leon Bernard; transportation, Georges Mandel; labor, Louis Brossard; colonies, Louis Rollin; interior, Joseph Paganon; public works, Laurent Eynac; health, Ernest LaFont; commerce, Georges Bonnet; agriculture, education, Philippe Marcombes; pensions, Henri Roustan.

Heavy police forces which have patrolled the boulevards throughout the night started home as Laval announced at 3 a. m. the successful outcome of his negotiations with political leaders.

The new premier immediately took his cabinet to the Elysee palace for presentation to President Albert Lebrun, here.

The new government is the French republic's 90th and the 13th in which Laval has served. Laval became premier.

Carter Is Convicted And Given Life Term

LAUREL, Miss., June 6.—(AP)—W. M. Carter, prominent businessman, was convicted by a jury here today of the "legs" killing of Mrs. Daisy Keeton and his punishment set at life imprisonment. He was sentenced immediately following the verdict.

The jury took three ballots before informing Judge W. Joe Pack that it was ready to bring in a verdict at 8 a. m. today.

After sentencing Carter was turned over to the custody of the sheriff to be recommitted to jail.

His attorneys said a motion for a new trial would be made before Judge Pack Saturday.

Finders of Ransom Bill

George Weyerhaeuser, kidnaper investigated tonight to find a beautiful blonde woman of 25, her alleged common-law husband, who is wanted on buncos charges, and to the 1929 Cadillac sedan registered to the girl and seen in Utah today.

A report that one of the $10 ransom notes paid for the release of the nine-year-old boy was exchanged for gasoline at Brigham City, Utah, was denied by federal agents there.

But the department of investigation men here, as well as city police, were intensely interested in finding the beautiful blonde, Gladys West, and Don Daves, buncos suspect. Three men and a woman were traveling in a C-dillie allegedly registered in Washington by Miss West when the suspected ransom bill was passed at Brigham City.

BANDIT BROTHERS, PAL DIE IN CHAIR

Millens and Faber Are Executed; Mother and Son Hang Today.

BOSTON, June 7 (Friday).—(AP)—The Millen-Faber trio of machine gun killers, the brothers, Murton and Irving Millen and Abraham Faber—met swift death in the electric chair at the Massachusetts state prison early today for the murder of Police Officer Forbes McLeod in the holdup of a Needham (Mass.) trust company on February 2, 1934.

Murton Millen, 25-year-old beetle-browed "brains" of the gang which terrorized eastern Massachusetts little more than a year ago, died first; his 21-year-old brother, Irving, followed with the appearance of a Spokan technological graduate, went last to the chair.

As clocks on near-by buildings rolled the hour of midnight, guards led the leader of the gang, Murton Millen, 25, from his cell, 13 paces from the electric chair.

He was strapped quickly to the chair, the current applied at 12:03 a. m. eastern daylight time, and at 12:10:03 a. m. was officially pronounced dead.

Murton's brother, Irving, 21, was the next to die. He took his seat in the chair in the brilliantly lighted death chamber at 12:13:50 a. m. and was pronounced dead at 12:21:20 a. m. with the appearance of a Spokan technological graduate, went last to the chair.

Last to die of the trio, whose brief but deadly career of crime horrified the entire state, was Abraham Faber, 25, who only a few years ago was graduated with honors from Massachusetts Institute of Technology. The current was applied at 12:26 a. m. and he was pronounced dead at 12:30 a. m.

DIXIE TEXTILE MEN TO MEET IN CHARLOTTE

CHARLOTTE, N. C., June 6.—(AP) Leaders of the textile manufacturing industry in the southern states will meet here tomorrow to consider joint policies and the situation arising from abolition of NRA.

Although called by the American Cotton Manufacturers' Association, the meeting will be open to executives of all cotton manufacturing companies in the southern states. W. M. McLaurine, of Charlotte, secretary of the association, announced.

"We want and expect all cotton manufacturing companies' executives in the south to attend and they will be welcomed, irrespective of their membership in the American association," he said.

McLaurine estimated that between 300 and 350 executives would attend the conference, which will be executive.

KITCHEN TESTED RECIPES

by Sally Saver

Spring is a grand season for birthdays, particularly among the very young. And that means more parties, but these need be no great problem, for the best children's parties are usually simple. Their games, of course, are familiar to everyone, since children still enjoy the same old favorites of our youth. But we can vary the party table a bit anyway. Of course, the preferred centerpiece is always a candle-light birthday cake, and rightly so, for nothing is more exciting or more decorative. But for our spring party, let's plan a centerpiece of individual birthday cakes. For this, bake as many cup cakes as you will have guests, and arrange them in a ring on a round chop plate or bread board. Place a colored birthday candle in a flowerholder in the center of each little cake, and then put a low bowl of gay spring flowers in the middle of the ring. Fasten a pretty basket filled with inexpensive gifts to the chandelier above the table and drape long, colored ribbons tied to the packages over the basket edge and down to pretty nut cups before the guests' plates. This table, with its gift basket overhead, will be decorative enough to delight the children almost as much as the following gala menu:

Chilled Tomato Juice
Creamed Tuna Fish and Peas on Toast Straws*
Hot Buttered Rolls
Cup Cakes with Fluffy Coconut Frosting*
Currant Jelly Ice Cream*
Iced Chocolate

Creamed Tuna Fish and Peas on Toast Straws.

Melt 3 tablespoons butter in a saucepan, add 3 tablespoons flour and blend well. Add 1 1/2 cups milk and stir until thick. Add 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1/2 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, a dash of pepper, one 7-ounce can white tuna fish (from which the oil has been drained), 1 cup canned or fresh cooked peas and 10 sliced stuffed Spanish olives. Serve hot on finger lengths of toast.

Fluffy Coconut Frosting.
Place 1 cup sugar, 1/3 cup water and 1 teaspoon distilled white vinegar in a saucepan and bring to a boil, being sure that all the sugar is dissolved. Allow it to cool slightly, then stir in 1 unbroken egg white. Place saucepan over double boiler or in a bowl of very hot water and beat vigorously until the frosting is thick and will stand in peaks. Add 1 teaspoon vanilla fold in 3/4 cup shredded coconut. Spread on cup cakes, leaving the surface of the frosting rough. Sprinkle with coconut.

Currant Jelly Ice Cream.

Break the contents of a glass of currant or Grape Jelly into small bits with a fork. Add to 1 quart vanilla ice cream and mix well. Pour into refrigerator tray and freeze. Serve in sherbet or compote dishes. Sliced bananas may be used on currant cream as a garnish.

Names will make news at your next children's party if you use taffy candies instead of place cards to show Bill and Betty where to sit. Candies cut an inch long are a good workable size for outlining the children's names. Make each letter containing a straight upward stroke two taffies high and size the other letter to the same scale. Four taffies make a good "O" and five produce an "A" and so on. The youngsters can make the taffy as well as the candy outlines of the names with this easy failure-proof recipe.

Molasses Taffy.

One and one-third cups (one can) sweetened condensed milk, 1/2 cup molasses, few grains salt.

Cook the condensed milk, molasses and salt together in a heavy pan. Stir over low heat until a hard ball forms when tested in cold water. Cool on buttered pan. Pull until firm. Stretch into a long rope and cut in pieces.

Peanut Butter Taffy.

One and one-third cups (one can) sweetened condensed milk, 2 tablespoons peanut butter, 1/2 cup corn syrup.

Cook condensed milk, peanut butter and corn syrup together in a heavy pan. Stir over low heat until hard ball forms when tested in cold water. Cool on buttered pan. Pull until firm. Stretch into a long rope and cut in pieces.

Gingerbread.

Two cups sifted cake flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder, 1/4 teaspoon soda, 2 teaspoons ginger, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1/3 cup butter or other shortening, 1/2 cup sugar, 1 egg, well beaten, 2/3 cup molasses, 3/4 cup sour milk.

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder, soda, spices and salt and sift together three times. Cream butter thoroughly, add sugar gradually, add cream together until light and fluffy. Add egg and molasses; then flour, alternately with milk, a small amount at a time. Beat after each addition until smooth. Bake in greased pan, 8x8x2 inches, in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 50 minutes, or until done. For gingerbread squares, cut in squares, serve with whipped cream.

Chocolate Tarts.
A food of instant appeal to young and old. A food with the joy of living in it! A happy, gay delight.

Chocolate Tarts.
Three squares bitter chocolate, 1 cup irradiated milk, 1 cup sugar, 2 eggs, 1/4 cup flour, 1/8 teaspoon salt, 1/2 cup boiling water, 1 teaspoon vanilla, chopped nuts (walnuts or pecans), individual tart shells.

Melt chocolate in milk in top of double boiler. Mix sugar, flour and salt. Add boiling water and stir this into chocolate mixture, stirring to keep smooth. Cover and cook about 15 minutes, stirring frequently. If chocolate bumps remain beat smooth with rotary beater. Beat eggs. Add hot chocolate mixture slowly to eggs, stirring constantly. Return to double boiler and cook until thick, about 3 minutes. Remove from heat, add vanilla, cool and pour into cold baked tart shells. Sprinkle with chopped nuts. If this mixture is used for one large pie it should be chilled thoroughly before cutting. Yield: 8 tarts or 1 large pie.

Little Apple Cakes.

One-half cup lard, 1 cup sugar, 1 egg, 2 cups flour, 1/4 teaspoon soda, 2 teaspoons baking powder, 1 teaspoon salt, 1/2 cup cold coffee, 1/2 teaspoon cinnamon, 1/2 teaspoon cloves, 1/2 teaspoon allspice, 1/2 teaspoon nut-

WANDERLUST HITS BOYS OF ATLANTA; FOUR ARE MISSING

An epidemic of wanderlust apparently has descended on Atlanta. As a result police were asked yesterday to hunt for four missing boys.

Jesse Hammond left his home at 527 Boulevard place Wednesday morning to go to commencement exercises at the O'Keefe Junior High school, his mother, Mrs. Ruth M. Knott, reported to police. He has not been heard from since. He is 15, has brown eyes and hair and wore a khaki coat and brown pants.

Grady Phillips, 14, left his home in College Park Tuesday and has not been heard from, his father, Jeff Phillips, reported. The boy was seen yesterday morning on Whitehall street, police said.

Horace Dowdy, 15-year-old son of J. W. Dowdy, left his home at 301 Prospect place, N. E., Wednesday to go to Piedmont park, where he is a caddy and did not return home, his father said.

Police also were asked to look for Robert O. Kelly, 18, of Windsor, who left his home yesterday morning and did not return.

SOLONS SEEK TO SAVE PROCESSING LEVIES

Force-Work Schedule Is Adopted, Designed To Push House Action.

WASHINGTON, June 6.—(AP)—Seeking to grasp every idea likely to save the farm adjustment program from NRA's unconstitutional ending, the house agriculture committee today endeavored to throw a new safeguard about the controversial processing taxes.

Simultaneously, the group adopted a force-work schedule designed to push the AAA amendments to house action within a week. The processing tax change was technical although generally regarded important from the constitutional standpoint. The committee wrote in a provision that "similar amounts" to the processing taxes collected must be specifically appropriated by congress for the benefit payments to farmers. The original law said the "proceeds" of the processing taxes should be paid out in benefit payments. Actually, however, the payments have been taken from the treasury's general fund, sometimes even before sufficient taxes had been collected. Today's change was designed to give legal backing to this procedure. Another development was the disclosure by Chairman Jones that requests have come from some tobacco,

Alleged Bold Bandit Cornered by Citizens

An alleged bandit who added insult to injury in his holding of a chain grocery store at 601 Parkway drive last night was caught and held by citizens until the arrival of police following a chase by one of his victims. He gave his name as C. E. Holsum, 35, of 397 North avenue, N. E. Holsum, according to police report, entered the store and asked C. M. Barnett, an employee, to lend him a pocket knife. Barnett obliged and the bandit walked over to the phone and cut the wires. He then asked Miss Thelma Ray, cashier, if she had finished checking up. As the young woman looked up, Holsum, it is alleged by police, pointed a pistol at her, with the command, "Hand over everything you've got." Miss Ray obeyed and the bandit then dashed from the store.

Barnett followed in hot pursuit and the bandit ran into a near-by restaurant where he was cornered and held by citizens until arrival of the police. The report did not say whether Barnett got back his pocket knife. Holsum was held on suspicion.

Wool, mohair and sugar cane interests for inclusion of their commodities in the marketing agreement sections of the new bill. These commodities were in the AAA amendment measure prior to the supreme court's NRA ruling. But the revised legislation, apparently to limit the number of farm products to which the measure shall apply, includes only milk and fruits and vegetables. In the case of these commodities Secretary Wallace would be empowered to "order" processors to come under marketing agreements if 50 per cent desired to or if two-thirds the farmers affected so requested.

BARRYMORE WORN OUT AT END OF CUBAN TRIP

MIAMI, Fla., June 6.—(AP)—Looking pale and tired, John Barrymore, the actor, arrived here late today aboard a Pan-American Airways plane from Havana.

He was accompanied by Elaine Barrie, the actress; her mother, Mrs. Edna Barrie, and Beatrice Drake, a friend. They took immediate reservations aboard an Eastern Air Lines plane for New York, where they are due to arrive tomorrow morning.

Apparently in a bad humor, Barrymore moped his brow nervously and appeared scarcely to notice flashing lights of newspaper cameramen. He wasn't feeling very well, said Miss Barrie, adjusting his necktie.

Barrymore said he and Miss Barrie expected to go into radio work following their arrival in New York, and that later they plan to star in a picture having a Cuban locale.

SHOLTZ ASKS LEGION TO FIGHT COMMUNISTS

Florida Governor Says Thousands 'Plotting Overthrow of Government.'

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., June 6.—(AP)—Asserting there were thousands of communists in the south "plotting to overthrow the government," Governor Dave Sholtz today called upon the Florida department of the American Legion to take action in this "serious situation."

During the legislative session just ended, he said, members of the "organized communist council number 27" of Florida came to Tallahassee and demanded of him and legislative leaders consideration of their suggestions.

"They didn't make requests," said Sholtz, "they demanded action, threatening to use force to enforce these demands."

The governor did not list the "demands," nor did he name the county in Florida where he said there were 3,000 communists. The visit of the communists to Tallahassee, he declared, followed "a secret meeting" at Jacksonville two weeks ago "of 46 of their leaders." He added "the gathering was attended by white and negro men and women."

"It is up to the Legion and auxiliary," he told members of the department here for its 37th annual convention "to preserve the right to worship God as we please and the right to live under a democratic government."

He said Legionnaires and auxiliary members should "go into the schools and homes" to fight the spread of communism.

The governor said he was not attacking teachers as a class in saying respect for the flag and constituted authority should be taught in the schools.

PIE AT BOX OFFICE WILL BE CHARGE AT VIRGINIA SHOW

NEW YORK, June 6.—(AP)—Not for money but for pie and cake, honey and jam, potatoes and cabbages, 45 actors and actresses will leave their Broadway haunts tomorrow for the white top mountains of Virginia, there to prepare for the third annual season of the Abingdon "barter theater."

From mid-June until August, they will trek through the countryside, presenting comedies and tragedies and receiving in return the produce of the farmers they entertain.

They have in Virginia don't grow on Broadway."

Porterfield is concluding his role in "The Petrified Forest," which stars Leslie Howard. He is Herb, the cowboy.

His plans for this third season are ambitious. Two full companies will be on hand. One will rehearse the next show while the other present the current attraction. He said the first show would be "March Hare," opening June 14.

About 25 per cent of the audience pay cash—35 cents is top admission—and the remainder "barter" its way into the century-old town hall where the dramas are presented.

CITY BUDGET INCREASE BARRED BY KEY, MILAM

Reduced Tax Digest Makes Thought of Higher Cost Folly, They Declare.

Mayor Key and Councilman Aubrey Milam, chairman of the finance committee, yesterday warned against any efforts to increase any item when the January finance sheet is presented to the city council for adoption June 17.

Following a conference Key and Milam asserted that the fact the city tax digest is $23,000,000 short of January anticipations, representing a loss of more than $355,000 in actual receipts, made it folly to attempt to increase appropriations.

Milam visited Key at St. Joseph's hospital, where the mayor is resting after his blood pressure mounted over the week-end. The mayor was reported as improving steadily and on the road to complete recovery.

"It will be impossible for us to anticipate a single additional dime," Milam said yesterday after the conference. "Mr. Key agrees with me we can do nothing but hold what we have and that it will be a struggle to place the $23,000,000 digest shortage on city books by the end of the year."

"We, however, are willing to try to

Vacation Begins Today For 90,000 Youngsters

Vacation joys begin today for about 90,000 school youngsters of Atlanta and Fulton and DeKalb county school systems.

Exercises will be held at 11 o'clock this morning for all Atlanta elementary schools and Fulton and DeKalb systems also have entered the vacation season. Hundreds of Atlanta graduates already have deserted their classrooms and have begun their vacations.

absorb that apparent shortage, but we can not attempt to add to it. Atlanta's finances have all been anticipated and we are faced with an actual shortage of $355,000. The only way to get that is to put intangibles on the tax records, and that is what we are going to do.

"We propose to begin our investigations immediately and to leave no stone unturned to get all of them that are available."

DEPUTY HIT BY CAR IN LAKEWOOD PARK

R. B. Deavours, of 694 Pryor street, a deputy sheriff attached to Judge Jesse Wood's court, was injured yesterday afternoon in Lakewood park when the automobile in which he was driving was struck by a car operated by G. W. McConnell, of 527 Boulevard, S. E.

McConnell took Deavours to Grady hospital, where he was treated for lacerations and contusions and dismissed. No charges were filed.

GIPSY SMITH SR. TO ARRIVE TODAY TO HOLD MEETINGS

The Rev. Gipsy Smith Sr., of Cambridge, England, will arrive in Atlanta this afternoon on the Piedmont Limited for a three-week engagement in the city-wide meetings to be held at the municipal auditorium, beginning Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. A representative group of Atlanta citizens will be at the Terminal station to greet the distinguished British minister and to express Atlanta's welcome.

Included in the group will be his daughter-in-law, Mrs. Gipsy Smith Jr., and his granddaughter. He will stop at the Piedmont hotel while in Atlanta.

At the first service on Sunday afternoon Dr. Charles A. Sheldon will have a chorus of several hundred voices from the various churches of the Atlanta churches. In addition to this choir, which will also sing at every service, Mrs. Ruby Chalmers, J. Gordon Moore and Miss Ethel Beyer will serve as accompanists on the piano and Joseph Ragan and George Hamrick will play the organ. Dr. Sheldon will have the final chorus rehearsal on Saturday night at 8 o'clock. Gipsy Smith will attend the rehearsal to meet the choir members.

Mr. Smith will be heard again Sunday at 7:45 o'clock and each evening throughout the three weeks, except Saturday.

LAKE SEARCHED IN VAIN FOR ATLANTA'S BODY

Thirty-Hour Hunt for Bernard Smith at Rabun Unsuccessful.

No trace of the body of Bernard Smith, prominent Atlanta businessman, who was drowned Wednesday morning at Lake Rabun, had been found by searching parties who had been dragging the lake in the vicinity of the tragedy for more than 20 hours late last night. The hunt will be continued, however, it was reported.

Little hope was held by searchers last night due to the great size and the depth of the lake. At the point where Mr. Smith is believed to have gone about 50 feet deep. It is thought that the body will not be recovered until it rises to the surface within three or four days.

Mr. Smith was drowned after he had left Harvey's boathouse at about 10 o'clock Wednesday morning in a canoe which belonged to his sister, Mrs. Ed Brooks, who has a summer home about four miles above the boathouse. He had intended to paddle up the lake to Mrs. Brooks' home.

The canoe, capsized, was discovered several hours later by H. L. Corley, of Haneville, and Mr. Corley's niece, Miss Helen Cochran. Mr. Smith's hat was found floating near by. Dr. Paul D. Selman, who was Mr. Smith's partner in the ownership of the Peachtree Pharmacy, returned late yesterday afternoon from the lake and expressed the opinion that the body would not be recovered until it had risen to the surface.

Mrs. Smith returned to Atlanta late last night.

BOY SEVERELY HURT WHEN STRUCK BY CAR

Frank Brooks, 5, of 324 Eugenia street, incurred lacerations and contusions of the head and body and a possible fracture of the skull yesterday afternoon when he was struck at Pryor street and Woodward avenue by an automobile driven by B. T. Simpson, of Decatur.

Simpson told police the boy ran into the left front side of his car and that he attempted to swerve to avoid the accident. The Brooks boy is the son of Mrs. Maggie Brooks. He was admitted for treatment at Grady hospital.

JAPS THREATEN ANEW TO INVADE NORTH CHINA

Nippon Expected To Occupy Tientsin and Peiping Shortly.

SHANGHAI, June 6.—(AP)—Japan delivered a virtual ultimatum to China today, military and diplomatic officials alike threatening "drastic action" by the Japanese army in north China unless there are settled quickly—and in accordance with Japanese views.

What the stiffening Japanese attitude portended for north China was not made known, but the opinion prevailed that the Japanese will soon occupy Tientsin and Peiping. Military and diplomatic authorities in Shanghai, Tientsin and Peiping all voiced openly Japan's impatience at the impasse in north China, resulting from Chinese officials' alleged failure to conduct affairs in the Peiping and Tientsin areas in a manner to Japan's liking.

These sources said the Japanese war office at Tokyo has instructed military authorities in north China "to take drastic action on their own initiative" unless the situation improves. As the controversy apparently approached a climax, Japan's highest military authorities in China convened today in Tientsin to consider Japanese reports said, "ways and means of dealing with the unsatisfactory north China situation."

The conference met at the call of Major General Yoshijiro Umetzu, commander of the Japanese forces in the disputed district. Among those attending were Major General Rensuke Isogai, military attaché at Shanghai; Colonel Seiya Giga, commander of the Kwantung army detachment; and a number of lesser military lights from Peiping, Tientsin and Shanghai.

EDITOR OF 'STATES' MARKS 50TH YEAR
NEW ORLEANS, June 6.—(AP)—Showered with congratulations from editors, publishers, diplomats and high executives, including President Roosevelt, Captain John Walker Ross, editor and managing editor of the New Orleans States, today celebrated his golden anniversary of continuous service with the States.

The States issued a special jubilee edition. The Times-Picayune Publishing Company tonight honored him with a banquet. Captain Ross entered the employ of the Daily States as a proofreader in 1885 at the age of 17 years. In 1892 he was made city editor and in 1900 was named managing editor. In 1931 Ross became publisher of the States and held that position until the States was purchased from the Ewing estate by the Times-Picayune Publishing Company two years later.

COOK COUNTY OFFICIAL REQUESTED TO RESIGN
CHICAGO, June 6.—(AP)—County Treasurer Robert M. Sweitzer, whose accounts in his recently vacated position as county clerk were shown by an audit to be $414,129 short, was requested by the Cook county board late today to tender his resignation immediately.

The demand was made on unanimous vote of the 14 county commissioners who late today investigated Sweitzer's statement that he was prepared to turn over $335,000 of the sum tomorrow, as a "down payment."

Hoover, Son Fishing.
QUEBEC, Vt., June 6.—(AP)—Former President Herbert Hoover and his son, Allan, arrived here today by automobile from Albany, N. Y., for a three-day fishing trip. The guest of James Dewey, the former president had lunch at the Dewey home and then left for the Lakota Fishing Club at Barnard.

STEEL MEN APPROVE 'ADHERENCE TO CODE'

Hour, Wage and Collective Bargaining Provisions To Be Retained.

NEW YORK, June 6.—(AP)—The 425,000 workers in the steel industry will be unaffected by the passing of the steel code, so far as hours of labor, wages and collective bargaining are concerned, representatives of all of the larger steel companies decided unanimously today.

A meeting of 200 officials of corporations controlling 90 per cent of the capacity of the industry, at the offices of the American Iron & Steel Institute, ratified a resolution of the board of directors calling for continuance of NRA working conditions without a dissenting vote. Action on the method of open pricing fixing provided under the NRA steel code was deferred for further consideration, in view of the fact that third-quarter price schedules have already been announced by the industry.

In a prepared statement of the proceedings, which was strictly limited to the accredited representatives of the individual steel companies, Eugene G. Grace, president of the institute, and president of Bethlehem Steel Corporation, was quoted as vigorously repudiating a return of the destructive practices in vogue before the adoption of the code. "Nothing in the supreme court decision," Grace told the delegates, "requires the industry to change its practices of fair competition which have been adhered to under the steel code. Nothing in the court decision requires the industry to go back to the chisel of wages, secret relations, or any discriminatory methods of competition."

Grace emphasized, in his remarks to the meeting, the responsibilities of the industry to its employees as paramount to both the interests of stockholders and consumers. "The industry has three great obligations; first, to preserve fair treatment for labor, second, to deal fairly with the buying public and, third, to exercise an intelligent trusteeship of the funds invested in the industry," Grace said. "I put the obligation to labor first," he added, "because the industry's great obligation starts with labor."

Postage Stamp Warfare Stirs Czechs, Hungarians
BUDAPEST, Hungary, June 6. (UP)—A bitter postage stamp war broke out today between Hungary and Czechoslovakia.

The Prague postal authorities refused to admit letters from Hungary bearing 20-and-40-heller stamps, inscribed "Justice for Hungary," which is considered propaganda for revision of her borders.

As a reprisal, Hungary announced that beginning June 25, no letters from Czechoslovakia bearing 25-and-30-heller stamps will be delivered but returned stamped, "not admitted."

MATANUSKA SETTLERS STEAL OWN PROPERTY

Authorities Are Puzzled as Stacks of Community-Owned Freight Diminish.

By ARVILLE SCHALEBEN.

Copyright, 1935, by The North American Newspaper Alliance.

Palmer, Alaska, June 6.—With some 20 carloads of freight stacked in the camps of the Matanuska valley colonists, thieves are brewing a problem for authorities. Articles are being missed daily and federal officials are planning guards to protect the property.

Actually the thieves are looting their own treasury, for, as members of the Alaska Rehabilitation Corporation, all colonists must share the costs.

The headquarters camp here is laden with costly materials. There are piles of sewing machines, plumbing ware, engines, household goods and lumber of all shapes and descriptions. The present warehouse space is extremely limited, so the materials are in high heaps, covered with tarpaulins. The authorities, trusting in the integrity of the settlers, have been leaving the piles unguarded, awaiting the time to haul them to their ultimate destination.

Rapid Work.

Like magic, the gang from the construction division has brushed, stumped and burned over the community center land here in Palmer. Two days ago it was all overgrown with sprouting willows and mature spruce and birch. Now they are sheared to stumps.

Singly, in pairs and in groups, the colonists walk from their camps across the yet uncleared farm tracts to the townsite and try to visualize what has been planned for them.

"It does not seem possible," they say, "that a city can grow out of this wilderness, but the government says there'll be one here."

What interests them most are the plans for an elaborate school to replace the log one which has served the area. Many feel that, with so much work to be done to get homes built before the snow flies, it will not be possible to have the school ready unless construction is contracted for. Several plan to urge Don Irwin, project manager, to do this if possible.

One Tragedy.

One tragedy has marred the settlement's activity. The new Alaskan's first calf, born after the arrival of settlers in the valley, died when two days old. Paul Yahr, colonist with some veterinary experience, had struggled throughout the day to keep the baby alive. When it took its last breath, Yahr looked up sadly at the group of volunteer aids standing about him and said:

"Hell, boys, there goes somebody's milk supply for the winter of 1937."

Two Atlantans To Make Bow at British Court

Subway Bandits Hold Up Train, Flee Into Labyrinth With $2,100

NEW YORK, June 6.—(UP)—In the best Jesse James tradition, two youths in their teens today held up a subway train and escaped with $2,100 snatched from a girl passenger.

Swiftly carrying out the robbery in the fraction of a minute a subway train stopped at the Wilson Avenue station, Brooklyn, the robbers covered 25 passengers in the center car with pistols, stole a pay roll Freda Weiner, 22, was carrying and forced the conductor to open the doors for them.

Unlike their western prototypes, they did not gallop away on horses, but their escape was just as effective. They jumped to the tracks and vanished into the dark tunnel.

Police from 10 radio patrol cars grabbed flashlights and followed them into the underground labyrinth, but searched in vain for the robbers.

Miss Weiner boarded the train at Union Square, after drawing her employer's pay roll from a bank, as she does every Thursday.

UTILITIES ATTORNEY RAPS TVA CHAMPIONS

Roosevelt, Norris and Lilienthal
Charged With Responsibility for Fight.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., June 6.—(AP)

Three champions of the Tennessee Valley Authority—President Roosevelt, Senator Norris, of Nebraska, and TVA Director David E. Lilienthal—were given chief responsibility by a Tennessee public service company attorney today for the fight to build a municipal power system here.

Thomas McConnell, chief of counsel for the company in its injunction suit with the city in Knox county chancery court described Lilienthal as the "master mind" of the fight for the city system.

But back of any specific planning, asserted Mr. McConnell, was the fact that "the country had been more or less inflamed, worked into a frenzy, by the campaign utterances of Mr. Roosevelt and backed up by Norris." He added that "the people had been led to believe that they had been robbed by the utilities."

Mr. McConnell was speaking against dissolution of the temporary injunction granted the power company to prohibit construction of the municipal system. Arguments began early this morning. They may be finished late tomorrow.

C. W. Key, in rebuttal argument following Mr. McConnell, argued there were only three questions at issue in the suit.

He named them as (1) the right of the city to build the system; (2) its right to receive TVA funds for the purpose; (3) its right to contract with the TVA for power.

T. P. S. has brought into the suit questions of constitutionality of various states and national laws and many records which the city has moved to strike out on the claim that they are irrelevant.

MORE COOL WEATHER ON MENU FOR TODAY

Atlanta will experience another day of fair weather today, but temperatures will continue to range considerably below normal, making it more like April than June, according to George W. Mindling, meteorologist here.

The mercury will range between 58 and 64 degrees, which will be only slightly warmer than yesterday, when the temperature climbed to 76 in mid-afternoon.

"June so far has been extremely cool," Mr. Mindling said. "The temperature deficiency yesterday was 5 degrees and the same was true Wednesday. The average temperature for the first week in June should be 76 degrees, but during the past week it has been only about 71."

KANSAS CITY FIGHTS TO ESCAPE KAW FLOOD

Hundreds Speed Dike-
Strengthening as Raging
Waters Move on City.

KANSAS CITY, June 6.—(AP)—The full crest of the Kaw river flood swirled down upon Kansas City tonight as an army of dike-defenders swarmed along a 9-mile system standing between the raging waters and a populous industrial region. Engineers said the dikes could withstand the pound-

A peak stage of 27 feet was forecast for the Kaw as it joined the swollen Missouri river here. This was not enough to send the water over the dikes. The river rose steadily from a stage of 20.2 feet early today.

Hundreds of men toiling to strengthen the dike headed eastward after the Missouri river crest passed—relieving the danger in a threatened simultaneous arrival here of the crests of both streams.

However, utmost vigilance was maintained along the dike system. The first weakness to develop was a few miles north of Kansas City.

Workmen succeeded in a move similar to one which failed and caused men to flee for their lives last night at Lawrence, Kan. They stopped the threatened gap with sandbags.

The Missouri river rose a foot at Omaha today. Army engineers said "big holes" were headed down the river but that no further flood danger was seen.

Bridges Barred.

City officials predicted losses in great Kansas City would scarcely exceed damage to bridges. Two were barricaded in fear they would collapse.

Dynamite was resorted to in an effort to dislodge driftwood packed against bridges.

Meanwhile, the Missouri river scoured over the levee and squatters were removed by police. "Shacktown" on the levee was under water. Verdant regions along the rich Kaw valley west of the city were ruined. Much of North Lawrence still was under water. An estimated 2,000 persons were homeless there and in surrounding lowlands.

Down the fertile Missouri river valley below here at least 500 homes were all or partly covered. An eastward flood of water was forced to flee their homes.

There were no further reports of loss of life. The figures remained at 3 for Missouri and 8 for Kansas while rehabilitation work progressed in Nebraska, hit by floods before the Republican river rolled its torrents southward into Kansas. Nebraska's known death toll stood at 14.

In Missouri, as in Kansas, Red Cross relief stations were set up by county chapters.

While there was a feeling of some relief in Kansas City, the Missouri river below here continued a steady rise. Levee guards fought to save standing dikes in the lower valley.

H. H. Krueger, University of Missouri rolls professor, estimated 400,000 acre of bottom land between St. Louis and Kansas City were covered.

Captain C. E. Walsh, district army engineer, indicated this was conservative.

Indications pointed to a probable Kansas flood loss of $5,000,000 or more.

Damage to the state highway system alone, said Harry Darby, state highway director, would run between $1,000,000 and $3,000,000.

County commissioners in the flood area have been advised by Governor Alvin M. Landon that the Civilian Conservation Corps personnel is available for use in Kansas reconstruction work where needed.

BANDIT BROTHERS, PAL DIE IN CHAIR

other killings for which they never were called to answer in court.

One was the shooting of another policeman, Frank Haddock, whom they killed in escaping from the bank holdup.

The others were a Fitchburg, Mass., store clerk, whom they shot down in cold blood after he had refused to open a sporting goods store stocked with rifles for them, and a theater employee whom they killed during a Lynn, Mass., holdup.

While the trio passed their last hours in the death house, Murtin's comely wife, Norma Brighton Miller, occupied a cell in the Dedham, Mass., jail, waiting on the official "disposition" of his case for her release from a sentence as an accessory.

Another woman who figured in the life of one of the trio, Faber's sweetheart, Rose Kneller, was reported aboard a ship, far at sea. No word had come from her, although Norma was said to have sent a verbal message to Murtin by a lawyer today.

It was the first time in Massachusetts history that two brothers were executed together and only the fifth triple execution on record here.

One of these was the famous Sacco-Vanzetti execution in 1927 when the two radicals went to their deaths on the same night a third man was executed.

MOTHER, SON TO DIE ON SAME SCAFFOLD

GEORGETOWN, Del., June 7.—(Friday)—The prayers of a grey-haired mother and her son echoed through the corridors of Suffolk jail as guards tested a scaffold in the wooden enclosure in which they will be hanged at daylight.

Recovered somewhat from the hysteria that gripped them through Wednesday and Thursday, Mrs. May H. Carey, 55, and Howard, 27, prepared to die for the insurance policy slaying of her brother, Robert Hitchens, seven years ago.

An eleventh-hour appeal was made to Governor C. Douglass Buck by Philip Cunliffe-Lister, now undersecretary, who probably will be raised to the rank of secretary.

First Lord of the Admiralty—Sir Bolton Eyles-Monell, as at present, Minister of Labor—Ernest Brown, triple minister of mines.

No name was mentioned for the post of minister of mines, which Brown vacated.

Sir George cabinet ministers—there are 20 in the present list—are expected to remain unchanged.

Aside from MacDonald's and Baldwin's expected switch, biggest news in the latest lineup was Sir Samuel Hoare's designation as prospective foreign secretary.

Eden Unchanged.

It had been confidently predicted that all important post would go to Captain Anthony Eden, 38-year-old lord privy seal and Britain's foremost exponent of peripatetic diplomacy whose recent triumphs on the continent added substance to his characterization as the "rising star" of the foreign office.

Some quarters believed Eden would retain his present post, which would be raised to full cabinet rank. The stage apparently was set for

Final Debate for Emory in Europe Against French Students in Paris

By ROBERT WIGGINS.

(Special Constitution Correspondent.)

LONDON, May 31.—(By Mail)—Imagine going to Paris to debate. That is exactly what the members of the Emory team are going to do—at least to debate once while in Paris. A contest with the students of the Ecole des Sciences Politiques on Thursday, June 6, will bring to an end our debating trip on the continent and in England, although the debate in Paris is the only one outside of the British Isles.

Our subject in Paris will be, "Resolved: That the press has proven detrimental to democratic government." John A. Griffin and I will defend the proposition, taking the negative side of the discussion.

In Paris the debate was arranged through the American ambassador and Dr. Donald A. Lowrie, director of the Fondation des Etats Unis. Dr. Lowrie has been quite interested in the contest with the French students, making the arrangements and keeping us informed by post.

Their attorney, Frederick Whitney, but it apparently produced no results and the mother and son appeared resigned to their fate.

Whitney said he proposed a conference with the governor, but that he was forced to reply negatively when the chief executive asked if there were any "leads or angles."

Carpenters late Thursday completed erection of a 20-foot fence about Delaware's huge wooden scaffold at the rear of the prison. Canvas will be drawn over the top before the doomed man and son are led from their cells this morning.

Mrs. Carey, who was reported to have spent Wednesday night screaming and trembling under a lightning storm that shook the jail with rain and hail, was calm Thursday evening as she prepared to dispose of a few personal trinkets, and write farewell messages.

The son, too, was more composed after a night in which he paced his cell and tearfully tried to console his fear-stricken mother. Lights of the jail were dimmed early last night, and close watch was kept over the two who are about to die.

The witnesses and physicians will be assembled about the scaffold at "5 o'clock sharp."

Whether the mother will die first has not definitely been decided, but it is expected she will be the first to go. Hitchens was bludgeoned and shot to death as he returned to his frame house near Omar, Del., the night of November 7, 1927.

M'DONALD TO END SERVICE AS HEAD OF CABINET TODAY

GRACE MOORE GIVEN ACCLAIM OF LONDON

Prepared To Give Her Cold Shoulder, City Taken by Storm.

LONDON, June 6.—(P)—Grace

Moore took London by storm tonight in her British operatic debut as Mimi in La Boheme before an enthusiastic audience crowding the huge Covent Gardens.

The American singer aroused wild applause, bringing the tiered Mayfair dowagers to their feet to clap and wave their fans vigorously—almost an unprecedented display of enthusiasm.

The critics who were admittedly prepared to give the "movie star" opera singer a chilly reception changed their minds and burst into such raptures of praise in their notices as:

"Never since Melba sang her farewell performance has there been such a reception accorded Mimi in Covent gardens."

All reserve seats were sold out two days in advance of the performance and as Miss Moore left the opera house, 50 bobbies had to clear a path to her car. She drove to a party in her honor at Claridges where she met the Prince of Wales.

U. S. GIVES $15,000, ENDS JUNE CRISIS IN FULTON RELIEF

welfare board; assume the salaries of the stenographic and accounting forces; supply nurses for the board's nursing service; furnish foodstuffs valued at $5,000, and supply necessary clothing and shoe repairs for the unemployed.

$80,000 Meets Needs.

By reducing case budgets, the welfare board will be able with $80,000 to meet the needs of approximately 18,000 persons. When the same group was under the jurisdiction of the FEERA, the average monthly expenditure was $125.00.

While the FEERA will make only the $15,000 cash contribution, it is believed that it will continue to help defray administrative costs after June 30 by supplying case workers as a relief project, it was said.

The welfare board hopes that by the end of this month it will have reduced the case load through drastic "pruning" so that it will be able to get along on the $65,000 allotted it by the state and county, Chairman Harrington said.

Expresses Gratitude.

"We are very grateful to Miss Shepperson for the interest taken by her in our problem, and for helping us to meet this crisis," Mr. Harrington declared. "We intend to make a very thorough study of the case load and I believe that we will be able to eliminate many of the unemployables now on our lists. In that manner we will be able to reduce expenses to such an extent that $65,000 monthly will enable us to get by after June 30."

While Atlanta's unemployables problem has been solved, Macon, Augusta, Savannah and several other Georgia communities are still facing crisis as the result of the transfer of unemployables to local authorities. Plans for assistance were received yesterday by Miss Shepperson from various Georgia communities when they learned that she had come to the rescue of the Atlanta welfare group.

Macon in Dire Need.

Macon, with 2,000 unemployables, is reported to be in dire need of temporary assistance, as are Augusta and Savannah. These three cities are expected to submit plans similar to that whereby Atlanta obtained aid.

Miss Shepperson declined to discuss the situation, but it is believed possible that she will aid other Georgia communities.

At FEERA headquarters in Washington it was emphasized that care of unemployables was being turned over to local agencies throughout the country and the transfer in Georgia was related in no way to previous differences between Governor Talmadge and Harry L. Hopkins, relief administrator.

CLEMMONS NAMED WAR RISK ATTORNEY

Slaton Clemmons, young Rome, Ga., attorney, has been appointed special attorney for the Bureau of War Risk legislation, Department of Justice, it was announced yesterday by United States District Attorney Lawrence Camp.

Mr. Clemmons succeeds Lawton Ware, of Atlanta, who has been promoted to an attorneyship in the veterans' bureau here. Mr. Clemmons will assist in handling war risk insurance claims against the government. Approximately 100 such cases are pending in Georgia, representing a reduction of 50 per cent from a year ago.

Decatur Civitans To Award Cup To DeKalb's Outstanding Citizen

Outstanding services to the community in DeKalb county will be rewarded annually hereafter by the Decatur Civitan Club, George H. Mew, outgoing president announced yesterday. The first award of a "Citizenship Cup" will be made in February next year in recognition of accomplishments this year.

New officers of the club were installed at the regular meeting last night in the Hotel Candler. Dr. W. Earl Quillian, president of Civitan International, presided. Arthur Cundy, secretary of the international organization was the principal speaker. Officers installed last night were O. T. Griffin, president; R. B. Cunningham, vice president; Wheat Williams, secretary, and George Munn, treasurer.

The cup will be awarded by the Civitan Club on nomination of a committee for "outstanding citizenship as outlined in and defined by the Civitan creed" and "outstanding distinction or efforts along any of the following lines: Civic improvement, charitable work, heroic action, scientific endeavor, greatest good to the greatest number of people or any other noteworthy achievement of which the citizens of DeKalb county can be justly proud."

The award will be accompanied by a scroll setting forth the basis of the presentation. The cup, on which the name of the person honored will be engraved, will remain in the custody of the winner for one year.

DeKalb county organizations will be asked to submit to the Decatur Civitan Club on or before December 31 the names of persons in their community they consider eligible for the award. The Civitan nominating committee will be composed of the president of the club, the past presidents and the chairman of the board of directors. They will submit to the club nominations of not more than five and not less than two persons, the final decision being made by the club by secret ballot. The club members will vote the nominations by number, names of the individuals remaining secret until after the vote.

COMMENCEMENT SEASON AT EMORY WILL OPEN TODAY

Emory University's ninety-fifth commencement season opens today with the annual meeting of the board of trustees.

Charles Howard Candler, of Atlanta, will preside at the meeting, when the committees on honorary degrees, on the Emory centennial and on the co-ordination of Agnes Scott and Emory will report.

Alumni Day is Saturday. Bishop Warren A. Candler will speak before the alumni association at 11 a. m. in the theology chapel. At a business meeting of the alumni association Saturday the newly elected officers and the alumni trustee will be announced by Robert F. Whitaker, alumni secretary.

Senator Richard B. Russell Jr. will deliver the baccalaureate address at 10:30 a. m. Monday in Glenn Memorial auditorium when 266 students will be graduated by Emory. Rev. Lester Rumble, pastor of the First Methodist church, of Athens, will deliver the commencement sermon on Sunday at 11 a. m. in Glenn Memorial.

A SOUND SUGGESTION

The suggestion of W. Eugene Harrington, chairman of the welfare board of Fulton county, that all phases of local relief work be concentrated under the jurisdiction of the county government, points the way to increased efficiency and economy in the support and treatment of those who for any reason are unable to earn a living for themselves and their families.

Mr. Harrington is undoubtedly right in his position that "under the present set-up of divided authority over health and welfare institutions, with the city operating some and the county others, the welfare board is unable to obtain a maximum efficiency in coping with the situation."

Such a step will be a definite move toward placing relief on a sounder and more businesslike basis than has existed during the period when huge sums of money have been poured out by the federal government to finance local charity work.

The sooner every community in the country again takes over the task of caring for its own unemployed and unemployables, the better it will be not only for the communities but for those to whom aid must be extended.

Confusion and waste are inevitable under a relief program under which each community in the country looks to Uncle Sam to perform a task that should be its own responsibility.

In past years, in good times and bad, local organizations have cared for the unfortunate. Churches, benevolent and fraternal societies and civic bodies of various kinds have raised and intelligently and economically expended funds to feed, clothe and shelter those unable to care for themselves. Now their efforts are relaxed, and all turn to Uncle Sam to do it.

Unquestionably there are many persons among the 10,000 unemployed stricken from the federal relief lists who are not entitled to public support, and others who have been receiving more than was necessary.

In the past such persons were supported by their families or by the churches or lodges, and that is where they should look now. Certainly they should not be on public relief rolls.

Under a unified control of all local welfare and relief work, charitable expenditures can be held to the lowest possible minimum and the burden on the community will be far less than it is now. Such a step would be a constructive move toward again placing relief and charitable work in Fulton county on a sound and efficient basis.

The birth of a three-legged pig, evidently a compromise of some kind with the AAA, is announced in Arkansas.

A Havana night spot is featuring a drink served in glasses 14 inches tall. As an investment it sounds attractive, for the long pull.

A volcanic mountain in Iceland has gone into eruption. Thus steam-heated skiing is added to the sports de luxe.

The marvel of the month was the complete collapse of the prosperity chain letter without congress putting it up to the White House for a veto.

So that residents in all parts of the city may see it, New York has a portable farm. Doubtless one of many that blew in from the dust storm country.

THE NEW ARMY AIR BASES

No effort should be spared by the Georgia delegation in congress and the local governments and civic organizations to assure the designation of Atlanta as the site for one of the new $10,000,000 interior army air defense bases.

Atlanta is the logical location for such a base because of its predominant position in aviation affairs and because it is the headquarters for army activities in the southeast.

It has already been determined that one of the bases will be established at Miami to care for the defense needs of the extreme southeast and the Caribbean areas. There is already a large aviation base in the Washington area and Atlanta would be equidistant between the existing base and the one to be constructed in Miami.

One of the new bases will undoubtedly be located near the Great Lakes, forming an air defense triangle, with Washington and Miami at the other two extremities. Atlanta is nearly in the center of this triangle, adding to the strategic value of a base located here.

The high speed of military planes would make it possible to reach any point in this area from Atlanta in a few hours' time. As an inland base one at Atlanta would be of particular value because it could serve the entire coast from Washington to Miami should weather conditions keep the planes near the ocean from going into the air.

It is understood that the establishment of a base at or near Atlanta is contemplated, but the city should be alert to see that this program goes through.

Credit for the enactment of the $100,000,000 appropriation for the establishment of the air bases goes chiefly to Representative Mark Wilcox, of the Miami district. From the beginning of the present session he has worked earnestly and diligently on this measure.

When completed the new plants will give the United States a system of aviation defense second to none in the world.

A VICTORY OF SCIENCE

No more outstanding victory has been achieved by medical science than the successful campaign waged for the reduction of deaths from tuberculosis, and there should be universal interest in the thirty-first anniversary of the Anti-Tuberculosis Association, which was celebrated throughout the country yesterday.

Fostered by the American Medical Association, the National Tuberculosis Association was organized in 1904, and the effectiveness and scope of its work is shown in the decrease in deaths from tuberculosis from 200 per 100,000 in that year to 57 per 100,000 in 1934.

The Atlanta Tuberculosis Association, of which Dr. C. C. Aven is president, now holds approximately 1,000 clinics a year and gives free treatment to more than 3,000 men, women and children in Fulton and DeKalb counties.

The earnest and unselfish spirit with which the medical profession has waged against the white plague is emphasized in the announcement incident to the observation of the national association's anniversary that "instead of eating a birthday banquet, the local association is presenting a scientific feast of good literature to the graduating medical students of Emory, to members of their medical staff, and, as long as the pamphlets last, to any member of the medical profession in Fulton and DeKalb counties."

The medical profession has no more distinguished achievement than its successful war against the dread white plague. The nation owes a debt of gratitude to the earnest and unselfish women who, under the banner of the Tuberculosis Association, have given unstintingly of their time, effort and ability in bringing under control the disease that only a few years ago was man's worst enemy.

Since its inception, the Atlanta organization, numbering among its officers and members not only many of the outstanding members of the medical profession, but leading public-spirited citizens, has rendered service second to that of no other similar organization in any American city.

This service, financed almost entirely by the annual sale of the Christmas Seals, places no financial burden upon the community. All the more, therefore, should there be universal appreciation of the unselfish efforts of those who compose the Atlanta Tuberculosis Association.

In view of the three homers hit in a day in darkest Pittsburgh, the association to have Babe Ruth stuffed and set up in a park has quietly disbanded.

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

By PIERRE VAN PAASSEN.

Duce and Negus.

The business between Italy and Abyssinia is not going the right way at this moment of writing. The emperor of Abyssinia has started to mobilize in answer to the constantly larger concentration of Italian troops on his borders. In a statement to the correspondent of the Daily Mail, he said: "... Italy had better take notice that we will defend ourselves ... and that we will know how to acquit ourselves in battle as our forefathers did at Adowa."

At Adowa, we should remember, the Abyssinians, under Menelik the Great, inflicted a smashing defeat upon an Italian army, vice, virtually annihilated the Italian forces in East Africa. The Negus, you will notice, is using sharper language than he has employed hitherto. His appeal to the League of Nations, too, showed that he is convinced that Italy is preparing to play him a bad trick. He still hopes there will be an amicable arrangement. But in what way can there be an amicable arrangement, that the Italian troops are called home, that Mussolini backs out of the adventure without the slightest advantage having been gained?

The Italian Side.

Signor Mussolini says he hopes that violence may be avoided, but he continues to send troops. What the Duce really hopes to accomplish is to gather such a huge military force on the borders of Abyssinia that the Negus himself will give in realizing that battle would be hopeless and futile. Signor Mussolini thinks, and he has good reason for thinking so, for there is a precedent, that in the end the Negus will ask for Italian protection, an Italian alliance, which will give Italy the dominant place in exploiting the Abyssinian market. For, we all know that the question involved in this quarrel is not the lives of a few Italian soldiers, but the lives of millions of Abyssinians who have been murdered by fierce tribesmen on the borders, but that Mussolini is playing a big gamble for control of the Abyssinian market.

When I say there is a precedent I mean that 50 years ago the Italians exercised a similar pressure on Abyssinia as they do today and war this time in Africa will weaken Italy to establish a mandate over her country. Italy did, most willingly, but hardly had she done so, or one of the Italian vassals of the Negus attacked the Italians, who did not expect any such move and simply wiped them out. Should Italy get a mandate over Abyssinia this time, there will be no surprise of that sort later on this time. That's what the 150,000 black-shirts are in east Africa to prevent.

France and England.

France and Britain are trying to persuade the Duce not to push the Abyssinian adventure any further at the present moment. They fear that a war in Africa will weaken Italy greatly, to such an extent that she cannot be counted upon to play a full role in the face of German rearmament and the new war this contains. The London Times warns Mussolini that the British know the Abyssinians and that under the most favorable circumstances the hands of thousands of Italians their lives. Of course, Britain nor France will prevent Mussolini from marching in if he so decides, but England and then there. Just think of 1914!

Health Talks

By DR. WILLIAM BRADY

BETTER BUY THAT BRIDGE WHEN YOU COME TO IT.

When you cross the bridge, you come to it, the old proverb says. A wee cavity forms in one of your teeth. At first it is painless and perhaps you are unaware that it is over. But decay has started at all. You're feeling all right and your teeth give you no trouble so why pay that semi-annual visit to your dentist for inspection and cleaning or any treatment which may be necessary?

In due time the caries or decay reaches the pulp or nerve and then you have the pain. Perhaps you still resort to home treatment, get temporary relief, and put off the visit to the dentist, this time because you are afraid it will be painful. But eventually you have to go, and your procrastination, you find, has cost you a tooth, not to mention the impairment of health which may follow if you persist in your false economy.

The dentist extracts the tooth and offers to install a bridge to fill the gap. But you're still quite Scotch and you come to the dentist's office. Once you get away from the dentist you will probably keep away until you are driven back by further trouble.

What happens in the next few days? Here is what happens, as described by Dr. Willis F. Ader, Los Angeles, dentist:

1. The opposing tooth in the opposite arch elongates.
2. The teeth on both sides drift toward the vacant space.
3. The normal contact between the teeth is lost.
4. Food lodges between the teeth, ferments or decomposes and favors cavity formation between the teeth.
5. Bad breath results from decomposing food and decay.
6. The gums gradually retract, exposing the roots of the teeth.
7. Pyorrhea pockets develop between the teeth.
8. The bone around these drifting teeth is absorbed and the teeth gradually become loose.
9. Chewing efficiency is impaired, leaving an extra work load for the stomach.
10. Eventually it becomes necessary to replace several teeth with bridge or otherwise, instead of the one original troublemaker.

The moral is plain. You had better buy that bridge when you come to it. That is the best economy. Dr. Ader does not mention a condition which may give a good deal of annoyance in such cases. This is a loud snapping or crackling when the individual with one or more missing teeth masticates. This is due to subluxation or partial dislocation of the jaw joint and there is nothing to correct it except restoration of the missing teeth by a suitable bridge or otherwise, and resumption of normal mastication.

Even if the condition of the teeth and the efficiency of mastication were

STRANGULATION

WASHINGTON, June 6.—The New Deal press agent system has been denounced on the lips of publicity. Those who have come most closely in contact with it have found it is frequently neither.

It functions at its best and its worst in the publicity headquarters of the Bureau of National Parks, Interior Department. There the delicate and subtle propaganda emanates daily. The only reason you have not heard about it is that most panting correspondents neglect to read such word-shed handouts as, for instance, the recent one from that source slugged:

"Prize Winners at Eating Contest." The text of this malicious and insidious effort to mislead the press follows in part:

"Two woodchucks, known to Yellowstone park rangers as Tillie and 'Gluttony' Gert (the quotation marks are those of the press agent) won top honors at a recent test banquet which included everything but the kitchen sink. Tillie consumed three blueberry pies, four large candy bars, two Kelly rolls, half a dozen sandwiches, and finished with two packages of salted peanuts. Five minutes after completing this bountiful meal she was back asking for more."

If you have not tired yet, the vicious subversive effort continues: "Gluttony" Gert did away with 10 flapjacks of no mean size, four bars of candy, a sack of cookies, and topped it off with three hard-boiled eggs, to which, not satisfied, she took to nibbling grass when the food gave out."

The handout admits that both Tillie and Gert live. No doubt this will be construed as an effort to extend purchasing power by encouraging overeating.

FLOUTING

The propaganda approach is more direct in another handout from the same source, headed: "Animal Codes of Fair Competition." Apparently the animals had not at that time realized they were unconstitutional, but, at any rate, the official propaganda announcement says:

"Codes of fair competition are prescribed in the latest novelty in contests initiated in Mount Ranier National park, Washington. Ground squirrels are the contestants. The objective is to see which can carry the greatest number of peanuts in its cheeks."

"Ordinarily an average ground squirrel, weighing half a pound, has a carrier capacity of 32 half nuts or 16 peanuts. But with their sporting blood aroused, capacity limit has been extended to more than 50. To date the record holder has stowed away 64 half peanuts and the runner-up 61. Visiting tourists supply the provender." (Note the statistics.)

Any casual observer will notice again the use of the overconsumption philosophy in this indirect effort to influence public opinion. To realize the proper scope of it, you must consider that thousands of copies of such stuff are handed out by government press agents daily. The expense of it all is footed by taxpayers.

The material here cited is not exactly a fair example of the general run of handouts, but it affords the opportunity to estimate accurately the value of same.

To find nine-tenths of them, you will have to look into the wastebaskets of the Washington correspondents, where they rightfully belong.

CENSORSHIP

The innocent steps they take are just as serious. For example, the Federal Communications Commission press agent has made no announcement of the fact, but the commission has sent out to field agents a confidential order instructing them to report any "unwarranted or libelous attacks on public officials."

This order was sent out five months ago, in January. So far, there is no evidence that the commission has taken any action against anyone for "unwarranted or libelous attacks." It has made no effort, for instance, to suppress Huey Long, whose attacks are certainly considered by the administration to be both unwarranted and libelous.

The commission disclaims censorship intentions, and no one can pin it down to any violations of its disclaimer. The situation is that it has issued orders which afford a good opportunity for censorship.

THINKING

All New Dealers are reading with sharp interest an article which appeared in the obscure quarterly published by Columbia University, Political Science Quarterly. It was written by Professor Ogburn, who was news six months ago when he retired from the NRA Consumers' Advisory Board and returned to private thinking, at Chicago University.

His current thought is that President Roosevelt has a hold on the nation's fellow such as no president ever had. His deduction is that as most people are poor, most are for Roosevelt.

The way Professor Ogburn tries to prove it is by analyzing the 1932 vote. He studied three types of voters, large city, small town and rural, in Illinois. In each group he discovered that the lower income voters cast their ballots for Roosevelt. He checked up on the rent they pay, and thus reached his conclusion.

What he failed to find out is how they will vote in 1936.

TIMING

The decision of congressional bonus leaders not to press their cause at this session may be traced to firm political roots. They will deny it, but they knew very well that they could get a bonus bill (Harrison compromise or better) at this session.

In their mind was monetary inflation, not bonus. Also mentionable is the fact that, if they passed a bonus bill, they would lose the issue, and consequently the voters' vote. Next year is a campaign year, and even the simplest voters know that the proper time to pass a bonus bill is then.

Soldiers at the Front Can't Win If the Folks Back Home Won't Help

By Robert Quillen

Two famous brothers recently pitched against the same team on the same afternoon. The elder brother lost his game, while the younger brother won, and this contrast of good and ill fortune was duly displayed in the headlines.

Reading the headlines alone, one got the impression that the younger brother had pitched the better game. Surely the one who wins is superior to the one who loses.

But on this particular afternoon, at least, the elder brother proved the better man despite his defeat.

The only way to judge the worth of a pitcher is by the number of runs he allows the opposing team. And the elder brother had allowed but five runs, while the younger brother had allowed ten.

The elder brother lost a well-pitched game because his team failed to make as many runs as he allowed, and the younger won a game not so well-pitched because the same team made more runs than he allowed their opponents.

There are many morals in that story, but the one of most service in times like these is the fact that you can't judge a man's abilities until you know the measure of his opposition.

A second-rate boxer looks good while knocking over a row of set-ups, but he is always "a mere shell of his former self" when he meets a champion. And a good man looks bad when he enters the ring with a keen pin in the region of his appendix.

Life is a handicap race, and each man carries a different weight. To measure his ability fairly, you must measure his accomplishment and check it against his handicap.

Every community has its failures and near-failures—men and women whipped in spirit; no longer trying to get ahead; no longer trying to be happy; no longer trying to live above reproach—defeated by that secret, sad and sordid handicap called "domestic trouble."

Few bread-winners, men or women, however able they may be, can triumph over the handicap of a home made hideous by bickering, jealousy, waste, complaining, unfairness and sullen unfriendliness. Unless he has the nervous system of an ox and the hide of an alligator, the strongest and ablest of men will eventually give up and drift in dull despair if fate has given him a handicap like that.

If he makes even a little success, he is an under man than one who climbs high with the inspiration and moral support of a happy home.

merely a question of comfort, it would still be wise economy to buy that bridge when you come to it. But when you figure in the effect of faulty mastication on health it becomes clear that putting off necessary dental treatment is sheer extravagance.

Conducted

NEW YORK, June 6.—The poultry industry of New York, whose three invalid bidders ganged and annihilated the Blue Eagle of the NRA, being married themselves in the cruel strife, is conducted almost exclusively by and for Jews.

The two million Jews of the greater city account for the consumption of about 95 per cent of the fresh-killed poultry, and most of the handlers, commission men and proprietors of slaughter houses are Jews.

The actual slaughtering is performed by a staff of certified rabbis who belong to a labor union affiliated with the International Association of Meat Cutters and the American Federation of Labor. They kill chickens from 8 a. m. until noon six days a week, using a deft, practiced stroke to slit the neck and extract the windpipe so that the chicken may bleed according to the kosher law. For this they receive 1-2 cent per pound killed, and the average wage $60 a week. The late code authority of the industry reckoned that on a consumption of 175,000,000 pounds of kosher poultry a year the rabbis, or schochim, received $875,000.

Half Million Toll on Tags.

The schochim are certified and supervised by another association of rabbis of apparently superior degree known as the Kasruth Association. The Kasruth Association having approved a schochet then oversees his work in any of 350 chicken slaughter houses in various parts of the city.

The Kasruth insists that each chicken which has been kosher killed shall bear upon one leg a small metal tag building to the Kasruth $145 per thousand but which is sold to the slaughter house keepers for $10 per thousand. The tag toll levied on 50,000,000 chickens kosher killed in New York every year would amount to $500,000, minus, of course, the $32,500 spent for the tags themselves.

Inasmuch as the rite is Jewish and that of those concerned in the chicken's career after it reaches town are Jewish, too, the tolls of the Kasruth and the pay of the schochim are a domestic affair of the Jews.

Could Not Be Policed.

The kosher poultry business for many years has been beset and beleaguered by racketeers, and many of the firms involved in the trade were glad in the beginning that the government was taking general charge, through the code, to suppress hoodlums who were taking tribute and sometimes beating into line with ball bats and gun butts misguided idealists who relied upon the law for their rights. But, like all code enforcement, the policing of the poultry business was impossible in the present stage of the human race.

The gypping and chiseling began again before the patriots of the trade had done cooling their bladders after the great NRA parade of 1933 and grew more unconfined from that hour on. In no time at all code enforcement was seen to be a random matter, and the code could not even protect the honest members from those who saw fit to chisel, much less from the gunmen.

Now, however, the idealistic foolishness is past. The records and furniture of the poultry code are in storage, and there is a sign, "For Rent, on the door."

But it fell to the kosher poultry trade to provide a striking new trademark to a great political party, the bankers' successors to old Bolivar the elephant.

ENGLAND ACCUSED OF AIDING ETHIOPIA

ROME, June 6.—(AP)—The newspaper Messagero today published a front page accusation that England has arranged a subsidy with Emperor Haile Selassie to give the Ethiopian troops regular pay.

The accusation was a highlight of a series of violent anti-British articles published by the entire Italian press.

Messagero stated: "England has promised Emperor Haile Selassie that she will give him the necessary means for paying the regular army so that it can be maintained united and efficient as long as England wishes."

CONFIDENCE GAME LAID TO ANTI-LONG LEADER

NEW ORLEANS, June 6.—(AP)—John P. Sullivan, an anti-Huey Long leader and a dispenser of federal patronage for the Roosevelt administration in Louisiana, was charged today in criminal district court with operating a confidence game. The charges were filed by an assistant attorney general.

The charges, including several counts of alleged fraud, were based on Sullivan's real estate transactions as head of the Navillus Realty Company.

HAMES IS GIVEN RIGHT TO HIGH COURT APPEAL

Frank Hames, bank robbery suspect, yesterday was granted the right of appeal to the supreme court by Judge George M. Dorsey, who had recommended him to Alabama authorities after a habeas corpus hearing. Hames is wanted in Florence, Ala., and extradition was granted two weeks ago by the governor's office.

Judge Dorsey denied a motion for bond, ruling that Hames must remain in jail until his case is decided by the high court. Hames contends that he was in Atlanta at the time of the Alabama robbery.

BANKER SLAYS SELF TO ESCAPE JAIL TERM

EMPORIA, Kan., June 6.—(UP)—Walter E. Finney, former bank president, involved in a $600,000 bond swindle, tonight shot himself in the heart, rather than begin serving a 36-to-400-year sentence for embezzlement.

The aged former telephone company manager and president of the Fidelity State bank here turned his pistol on himself in his country cabin.

The aged man was taken to the hospital by Sheriff Roy Davis who carried papers ordering him to prison.

Refuses Hospital $5 But Leaves It $50,000

MEMPHIS, Tenn., June 6.—(UP)—The late Mrs. Mary B. Coleman, Memphis, two years ago refused to give sisters at St. Joseph's hospital $5 for purchase of a rat terrier to chase rodents from the building.

"I won't give you $5 for the rat terrier," Mrs. Coleman said, "but I will remember the hospital in my will."

Mrs. Coleman died after an automobile accident in California last week. Her will contained a $50,000 request for the hospital.

"ENIGMA" EXPLAINED

The odd names of Georgia places seem to have caught popular fancy, judging from the letters that have come in on the subject. One of them explains the matter of the name "Enigma."

"Many years ago south Georgia had a boom," says Mrs. T. C. Floyd, of Chippewa, Ga. "New towns were being built and what to name this particular new town was quite a puzzle to settle so someone suggested the name Enigma to settle the puzzle."

A minister who was trying to establish a church there told me that he and his wife, Mrs. Floyd, had been married in Enigma. The minister's name was H. W. Elder. He has gone to his reward but everyone loves his memory. Mrs. Elder has written before and her letters are truly delightful. As a matter of fact she sent two letters in one envelope this time, but I do wish, Mrs. Elder, that you wouldn't wait that way. For all the 73 years you claim, but which I do not choose to believe, you are more alive to the world and its things it contains than 90 per cent of the people half your age. Anyway, your letters don't read like what I imagine a person of that age would write, so let me reiterate, age is not measured in years but in the joy one gets from living every day to the fullest extent. Someday I shall stop writing to your letters and publish some of them in this column. They are beautifully written.

Then Ernest Ackery, of Spring Street school, who signs himself president of the Field and Stream Club, suggests some additional names to add to my list.

"In looking for flowery names in Georgia, don't overlook the hamlet of Le Gro, eight miles east of Cartersville, near Stam Creek, and two miles north of the Lovensong bridge across the Etowah. To the east is Toonigh and southwest is Pumpkinvine creek and,

VISCOUNT BYNG, 72, PASSES IN ENGLAND

Noted World War Leader and 'Hero of Vimy Ridge' Dies After Operation.

THORPE-LE-SOKEN, ESSEX, Eng., June 6.—(AP)—Death took another of Britain's great war heroes today, leaving only one outstanding leader, Lord Allenby, alive.

Field Marshal Julian Hedworth Byng, first Viscount Byng of Vimy, "hero of Vimy ridge," first commander of the Canadian corps in the great war, former governor-general of Canada and peacetime reorganizer of London's metropolitan police, died at 2 a. m. in Thorpe hall after an emergency operation. He was 72 years old. The dogged old fighter's death came only three weeks after that of another spectacular figure of the war period, Colonel T. E. Lawrence, the famed "Lawrence of Arabia," who died May 19 of injuries suffered in an accident while motorcycling.

Viscount Byng had been ill during recent years and several months ago visited Canada and California in quest of health.

He developed acute abdominal symptoms Tuesday afternoon, an official bulletin said, making an immediate operation imperative. It was performed yesterday. "Unhappily, heart failure followed," the bulletin said. He died early today.

Highly Respected.

A soldier all his life until he was summoned to such peacetime pursuits as the governor-generalship of Canada and the work of reorganizing the London police, Byng enjoyed the hearty respect of the empire's foremost military men, among them the late Sir Arthur Currie, who succeeded him in command of the Canadian corps.

Byng was the creator of the Canadian corps, the volunteer organization that performed notably in the war. He was called to the western front shortly after the opening of the World War; he was perhaps the last man in history to make cavalry campaigns valuable in modern warfare; he was the genius of the triumph of Vimy Ridge when 100,000 Canadians under his leadership overran that vital rise of land on Easter Monday, 1917. After that he was made commander of the third army corps; saw his Cambrai offensive neutralized for lack of troops and support, was promoted to general late in 1917 and headed the third army as it hung on courageously in the teeth of the last great German offensive. He also took part in the final Allied drive.

"Tired Old Man."

Although he sought seclusion after the war, he was appointed governor-general of Canada, leaving "a tired old man" in 1928.

Two years later he was called to reorganize the metropolitan police, riddled by charges of bribery and collusion, and spent three years in that task. He was credited with organizing the automobile flying squads, the police wireless system and police telephone call boxes and gained fame for his "clean-up" of the West End, in which more than 40 places of dubious repute were closed.

Since 1931 Byng and his wife, who survives him, tried to enjoy the retirement denied him before, making many sea voyages chiefly to Canada and the United States' west coast.

British and foreign governments heaped honors upon him, and parliament, granting him $150,000, thanked him for "distinguished services."

There is no heir to his title.

FLORIDANS PROTEST PROPOSED WATERWAY

SANFORD, Fla., June 6.—(AP)—"Hearty condemnation" of the proposed Gulf-Atlantic ship canal was carried in a resolution which a group of central Florida growers, shippers and railroad men mailed today to President Roosevelt.

Prepared by Judge W. K. Whitfield, of Orlando, the resolution was adopted last night at a mass meeting in the courthouse here. It was introduced by Joshua C. Chase, of Winter Park and Sanford.

The resolution said the canal would lower the levels of Florida's fresh water lakes, greatly increase flood hazard because of lower lake levels, destroy productivity of soils by raising the level of salt water as much as 13 feet, destroy fresh water underground streams, and necessitate the construction of numerous bridges.

The project, said the resolution, would be "unwise, uneconomical, expenditure and waste of the people's money, a project that will prove to be impractical from an earning standpoint."

NIGHT BURGLARY MADE CAPITAL CRIME IN ALA.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., June 6.—(AP)—Governor Bibb Graves today signed into law the Welch bill making a capital offense of night burglary of homes.

The minimum sentence under the act is 10 years with the maximum of death. The penalty under the measure does not, however, apply to daylight robberies of homes.

The bill was sponsored by Representative W. S. Welch, of Bessemer.

SHORTAGE OF POWER IS AVERTED IN TOLEDO

Workers Agree To Postpone Paralyzing Strike and Await Parley.

TOLEDO, Ohio, June 6.—(AP)—Toledo and northwestern Ohio escaped today from a threatened power shortage as striking workers of the Toledo Edison Company returned to their posts.

Full operations of the power company and several factories which closed fearing a power shortage were resumed. The electrical workers' union voted shortly after midnight to return to work pending further negotiations early next week in New York.

ILLINOIS POWER STRIKE
ENDS AFTER 2 MONTHS

BELLEVIEW, Ill., June 6.—(AP)—Electric lights provided the illumination for numerous southern Illinois households tonight for the first time in two months as a strike of utility workers came to an end.

Details of the settlement have not been made public, but Michael Boyle, vice president of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, and Allen Van Van, vice president of the Power & Light Company, said that they were in complete agreement.

Varying wage scales were increased and hours were shortened, the officials said at the conclusion of a conference in Springfield last week.

PEACE PARLEY CALLED IN SHIPBUILDING STRIFE

CAMDEN, N. J., June 6.—(AP)—Officials of the New York Shipbuilding Company and representatives of the striking Industrial Union of Marine and Shipbuilding Workers of America today called a conference for tomorrow to discuss a settlement.

Hope for early mediation of the differences was raised by reports that both sides are willing to make concessions. The employees, on strike for several weeks, demand a 15 per cent pay increase and a closed shop.

NASHVILLE TAXICABS
ROLL FREELY ONCE MORE

NASHVILLE, Tenn., June 6.—(AP)—With the taxi strike amicably settled, Yellow and Jolly cabs were operating full force on Nashville streets tonight for the first time in over a week.

Manager O. D. Jenkins, of the General Cab Company, which runs both lines, said tonight that his firm planned to rehire "practically all" the 60-odd striking men following his conference today with a committee of three drivers.

The agreement stipulated, Jenkins said, that henceforth the drivers would not be charged for gasoline and that the labor union organized by the employees would be recognized by the company.

POTOMAC ACCIDENT
DENIED BY M'KELLAR

WASHINGTON, June 6.—(AP)—Senator Kenneth McKellar in effect reiterated the Mark Twain reply of "gross exaggeration" today regarding a boating accident yesterday in which the Tennessee democrat was said to have been involved.

The accident resulted when a cabin cruiser was tossed against the sea wall in the Potomac river. McKellar was said to have been aboard and to have been slightly injured.

He said today he was in his office at the time the accident was supposed to have occurred and that later he went to the show, not going near the river all day.

THREE ARE INJURED
WHEN CAR HITS POLE

One person was seriously injured and two others were hurt last night when the car in which they were riding crashed into a telephone pole on Lakewood avenue near Claire drive.

A man listed as Paul Hancock, of 1075 Capitol avenue, was admitted to Grady hospital with a possible fracture of the skull and probable internal injuries. His wife was cut about the head and face and police said Robert P. Beard, 33, of 383 Capitol avenue, was also cut about the head and received a fracture of an arm.

They were returning from the police barbecue at Lakewood park when the accident occurred. Police did not know what caused them to hit the pole.

MEASURE TO REPLACE LIQUOR CODE DRAFTED

Presidential Approval Indicated for Agency To Supplant FACA.

WASHINGTON, June 6.—(AP)—Presidential approval today was reported stamped on a draft of new legislation to create a permanent federal agency for controlling the liquor industry.

Designed to replace the Alcohol Control Administration which vanished constitutionally with NRA, the measure was whipped into final shape today. It was to be sent to congress tomorrow with instructions for rush action shortly after house disposal of the "stop-gap" NRA bill.

Speed was emphasized by administration representatives to avert a breakdown in federal control because of the elimination of FACA codes. It was hoped by officials that final action by both branches could be had by the end of next week.

Drafted by the FACA and treasury experts, and approved by Solicitor-General Stanley Reed, the administration measure is tied to three constitutional pegs—the interstate commerce clause; the tax power vested in the federal government and Section 2 of the twenty-first (repeal) amendment, which reads:

"The transportation or importation into any state, territory or possession of the United States for delivery or use therein of intoxicating liquors, in violation of the laws thereof, is hereby prohibited."

Solicitor-General Reed, in passing on the draft was reported to have informed President Roosevelt there was no question of its constitutionality. The new agency will bear a new name, which has yet to be selected. It will be a separate entity to handle regulation of the liquor, wine and brewing industries, but will be more closely co-ordinated with the treasury's internal revenue bureau than was FACA.

The draft was discussed today with Speaker Byrns by former Representative Charles West, of Ohio, the White House contact man, and Harris E. Williamson, vice chairman of the FACA.

The speaker was informed that the draft would provide the federal government with "all the power necessary" for the regulation of the liquor industry, within the constitution. Byrns placed it next to NRA on the house legislative schedule and indicated it would be brought up for action early next week after short hearings by the ways and means committee. Little change was contemplated in the machinery set-up by FACA.

GAINESVILLE MILL
ADDS 200 EMPLOYEES
AND 8-HOUR SHIFT

GAINESVILLE, Ga., June 6.—Employing 200 more people and increasing the pay roll by approximately $15,000 per month, Chicopee Manufacturing Corporation here will operate beginning Monday on three eight-hour shifts, an increase of eight hours per day.

This move, which was sought by the surgical supply manufacturers during the operation of the NRA but denied, was instituted as soon as the invalidation of the act by the supreme court became known.

The mill, however, will continue to maintain the NRA wage scale and the maximum 40 hours per week per employee, officials state.

The increase will mean the mill will operate 120 working hours a week as against 80 formerly. M. T. Grimes, superintendent, states the mill has received more than 1,000 applicants for jobs since the additional shift was made known.

NEWS TRAVELS FAST
In the nation's capitol.

Whenever Government officials make a decision, millions of people want to know what it is.

There's a Government decision about gasoline, for instance, that's made thousands of motorists stop and think.

It's this: Gasoline for the Government's emergency duty must pass a more rigid set of specifications than that for ordinary use.

IF YOU EVER DROVE an ambulance, you'd know why Government buyers demand a faster-starting, more powerful gasoline for their emergency vehicles.

But you don't have to be an ambulance driver to get a gasoline like that!

You can buy it all of the time...and without extra cost...at any Texaco Fire-Chief pump.

THAT'S NOT A CLAIM.
It's an actual fact.

Texaco Fire-Chief gasoline has been matched against the Government's higher, emergency specifications.

It meets the rigid U. S. Government requirements for use in ambulances and fire-engines.

CITY, COUNTY SCHOOLS
CONSOLIDATION URGED

Edgar Neely Advocates Combining of Systems as Taxpayers' League President

Edgar A. Neely, president of the Atlanta Taxpayers' League, yesterday advocated consolidation of the school systems of Atlanta and Fulton county and "co-operative combining of other departments" where there is overlapping of services.

In a communication addressed to the mayor and council members and to the Fulton county commissioners, Neely said he believed consolidation of governments of DeKalb and Fulton counties to be impracticable, and inadvisable at this time, but favored the other consolidations.

Neely spoke for members of the league and asserted he did not think the proposed combination of the governments in Fulton and DeKalb counties would draw public support at this time.

Excerpts from his letter follow: "Our investigations indicate that the time is now ripe for the consolidation of certain departments of the Atlanta and Fulton county governments. We believe this thought will receive the enthusiastic support of a majority of the citizens, who could see in the consolidation a chance to free the schools from political control, to improve the educational standards in the community and to reduce the total cost of public education."

"We call attention to the act of 1929, page 184, which permits the consolidation of city and county school systems. We believe this thought will receive the enthusiastic support of a majority of the citizens, who could see in the consolidation a chance to free the schools from political control, to improve the educational standards in the community and to reduce the total cost of public education."

"We understand there are certain localities where cities and counties have entered into a voluntary plan of co-operation, under which the county performs certain services for the entire community, and the city contributes its pro rata part of the cost. Certain functions are handled by the city and the county pays part of the cost. The volunteer system of co-operation is being given to Atlanta and Fulton county."

"The governments of the city of Jacksonville and of Duval county recently have been consolidated."

BOOKS ON STATE LIST
URGED BY SCHOOLS

Atlanta public schools will use books on the state list as the basis for elementary schools if the Atlanta Board of Education Tuesday approves a recommendation of the textbook committee of the board.

The move, it was explained by Arthur Scott, member of the committee, will save thousands of dollars a year in book purchases.

The committee's action was taken at a meeting held last night at the city hall.

Negro Burglar Blames Liquor for Downfall

Albert Abram, negro, according to his story told in Fulton superior court yesterday, went to burglarize a storehouse of Southern Tablet and Manufacturing Company May 15, and received a two to three-year sentence.

The negro said he entered the place with another man who made his escape after they had taken a pistol, some cartridges and $1.63 in cash. Abram got lost in the building and consoling himself with a pint of liquor, remaining in the loft to sleep it off where he was discovered by an employee 24 hours later after police had searched the place for clues.

"Where am I?" he inquired dizzily. "Never mind where you are," replied a cop. "You'll be in the house long in a very few minutes."

FRANK ROBERTSON
INSTALLED RULER
BY ATLANTA ELKS

Officers of Atlanta lodge No. 78, P. O. Elks, which installed last night, Frank M. Robertson being inducted as exalted ruler, succeeding Charles G. Bruce. Mr. Robertson has been prominently connected with the lodge for many years and has served in practically all offices.

Other officers installed were Jason Tuggle, esteemed leading knight; Joe Haley, esteemed loyal knight; Dr. H. Etheridge, esteemed lecturing knight; J. Clayton Burke, secretary; J. L. Killebrew, treasurer; Dr. Raymond W. Thayer, chaplain; Rev. Russell K. Smith, chaplain; J. L. Winn, trustee for five years, and J. P. McMahon, tiler.

Mr. Bruce, retiring exalted ruler, automatically becomes president of the past exalted rulers' association of the lodge. He was presented with an engraved loving cup by the lodge in token of its appreciation for the valuable services he rendered during his administration. Mr. Bruce was also recently elected vice president of the Georgia State Elks' Association.

Two of the eight cars of the Elks 1935 good will fleet arrived here yesterday and the visitors were entertained at dinner by the lodge. The cars are on their way to Columbus, Ohio, and their arrival there the week of July 15 will signal the opening of the Elks 71st grand lodge convention.

COMMITTEE TO SEEK ITEMS FOR BOND ISSUE

Councilman John M. Owen, sixth ward, yesterday was named chairman of a special committee to recommend items to be included in a bond issue in an effort to take advantage of the federal government's agreement, under the city's 45 percent additional as an outright grant to any funds which are voted for public improvements.

Acting Mayor Ed A. Gilliam made the appointment and Owen told him a meeting of the committee will be called within the next week to discuss the matter thoroughly.

Council already has instructed City Attorney Jack C. Savage to prepare an ordinance calling for a $1,000,000 bond issue for sewers with a view of getting the federal government to add another $4,000,000 in labor and materials to complete modernization of the metropolitan district.

It is anticipated at least another $1,500,000 will be asked for school construction of a modern fire station, waterworks, crematory and other departments of the city.

Members of this special bond committee in addition to Councilman Owen are Councilmen Max M. Cuba and Aubrey Millam and Aldermen Frank H. Reynolds and John Scott.

Middlebrooks, and Dorothy Lillian Butler.

GEORGE R. WILLIAMS
DIES IN BIRMINGHAM

Former Widely Known Atlanta Man Was Leader in Insurance Field.

George R. Williams, 62, formerly a widely known resident of Atlanta, died yesterday afternoon in Birmingham, Ala., of a heart attack.

He had been Alabama state agent of the New York Underwriters' Association for 20 years and was president of the Alabama Field Men's Club at the time of his death.

Mr. Williams was prominent in the insurance business in Atlanta for years before he moved to Birmingham. He was a past official of the Blue Goose insurance fraternity. He was a native of Dardanelle, Ark. The funeral will be held at 3 o'clock this afternoon at John's chapel in Birmingham.

In addition to his wife, he is survived by a son, G. Rainey Williams, of Atlanta, who is assistant manager of the Cotton Insurance Association; a sister, Mrs. C. S. Lynch, of Muscogee, Okla., and a brother, T. Williams, of Little Rock, Ark.

REBUILDING FUNDS FOR NEGRO SCHOOL
ASKED BY CHURCH

Funds to provide for the rebuilding of St. Elizabeth's Episcopal mission for negroes in LaGrange as a memorial to the late Bishop K. K. Nelson, first bishop of the diocese of Atlanta and founder of the mission, is being launched here.

The chief work of the institution is the maintenance of a preparatory school for young negro children, work that is not duplicated by any other agency in that city. The present buildings are in need of repair and are said to be inadequate to carry on the work that so interested Bishop Nelson during his lifetime.

Funds now sought would be used to erect a school building and chapel, which would be dedicated to the mission founder, Rev. J. K. Satterwhite, minister in charge of the LaGrange work, has assurance of substantial aid locally, it was said and that recent council of the diocese of Atlanta gave permission for the added appeal here.

PORK PROCESSING TAX FACING LEGALITY TEST

LOUISVILLE, Ky., June 6.—(AP)—Constitutionality of the processing tax on pork was attacked by the Louisville Provision Company in a petition on file today in federal district court.

The petition contends the tax violates the constitution in not being for the purpose of paying debts of the United States, to provide for the common defense and the general welfare; that it violates the fourth amendment involving delegated powers; that it violates the due process clause of the constitution.

Further, the company held, its business is intrastate and not subject to federal regulation. The emergency responsible for the tax law passed, the company said, because the price of pork has risen to a value in excess of the average price paid to the farmer for hogs during the base period August 1909 to July, 1914, as cited in the legislation.

EX-ALABAMA SOLON
GETS 60-DAY PAROLE

MONTGOMERY, Ala., June 6.—(AP)—Former State Senator E. D. Jordan, of Atlanta, serving a sentence of from 2 to 2 1/2 years upon conviction of soliciting a bribe while a member of the 1932 legislature, today was granted a 60-day parole by Governor Bibb Graves.

The former senator was convicted December 2, 1932, in Montgomery circuit court of soliciting a $250 bribe from Lee Castleberry, Gadsden theater manager, for his "vote for official influence" in the passage of the Jordan act to permit Sunday movies in Gadsden.

His appeals, carried to the supreme court, delayed his imprisonment until October 23, 1934, when he entered Kilby prison here. His prison record today showed that he had a Class A rating as a prisoner.

AMATEUR FLIERS PLAN TO GIRL N. AMERICA

SALT LAKE CITY, June 6.—(AP)—In an effort to circle the North American continent over a 11,000-mile course in 11 days, two amateur fliers will leave here next Saturday for Vancouver, B. C.

They are Mahlon S. Kemmerer, post-graduate geology student at the University of Utah, the pilot, and Alfred P. Reck, of the Deseret-News editorial department.

As outlined their flight will take them across Canada to Quebec and Halifax, N. S., thence down the Atlantic seaboard to Miami, Fla., to Havana, Cuba; Mexico; Yucatan; Vera Cruz, Mexico, D. F.; San Francisco and return to Salt Lake City. "The flight is an effort to show that a sportsman pilot can make a complete circle of North America in 11 flying days," Reck said.

CONCERT TO BE GIVEN BY FERA ORCHESTRA

The Atlanta concert ensemble, sponsored by the recreational department of the FERA, will be presented in a concert at the Wesley Memorial church at 8 o'clock tomorrow night.

The orchestra consists of 60 or more players, and is made up from nine community centers, East End, West End, College Park, East Point, Bass High, Joe Brown, East Atlanta, Hoke Smith and Roswell. The players are mostly amateurs and have been practicing for some time under the direction of Whitney Hubner. Free instruction in orchestra playing may be obtained by attending rehearsals held at 7 o'clock every Saturday night at the church.

Anak Society at Tech
"Taps" Seven at Ball

Traditional "tapping" ceremonies of Anak Society at Georgia Tech brought five juniors and two alumni to the center of the floor at the senior ball in the naval reserve armory on the Tech campus Wednesday night to receive the Anak insignia.

Those who will complete the organization during their senior year at Tech are Bill Finch, Allen Morris, Dan Holsenbeck and Oscar Thompson, all of Atlanta, and Culver Kidd, of Milledgeville. The alumni honored were Albert "Hoot" Gibson and Charlie Griffin.

The dance floor was cleared for the ceremonies. The present members, in cap and gown, slowly circled the floor, "tapping" the selected members.

Rev. William Turner Watkins, pastor of the church here at Emory University, will preach the sermon at the Presbyterian church Sunday morning. Commencement exercises will be held at the Methodist church.

103 Finish at Rome.

ROME, Ga., June 6.—Diplomas were awarded 103 seniors of the High school yesterday at graduation exercises in the municipal auditorium. George T. Watts, chairman of the city board of education, presented the diplomas.

The program was conducted by the seniors themselves, with the five honor graduates giving their ideas of how the high school should train its pupils. Miss Mary Stewart, Wright, president of the senior class, presided.

Honor students who spoke were Margaret Amberson, Susie Davis, Martha King, Oxford Robertson and Harry Bryson.

Dedication at Vidalia.

VIDALIA, Ga., June 6.—(P)—Several prominent Georgians are on the program to speak at dedication exercises for Vidalia's new $75,000 school building tomorrow morning.

Scheduled speakers include M. D. Collins, state superintendent of education; Kyle T. Alfried, secretary of the Georgia Education Association; Miss Emily Woodward, of Vienna; Miss Gay B. Shepperson, of R. L. McDougal, state project supervisor of the FEPA.

The school is to hold its graduation exercises on June 14.

HEAD OF MACON MILL HITS GORMAN CHARGE

MACON, Ga., June 5.—(P)—Assailing a statement by Francis J. Gorman, United Textile Workers' vice president, as "full of false impressions," President George W. McCommon, of Atlantic Cotton Mills, said today the mills had not cut the hourly pay of its workers.

Gorman's statement said Governor Talmadge had mobilized the national guard to compel workers to accept the wage cuts and lengthening of hours. It added that the "Atlantic Cotton Mills, Macon, said today the governor's guns, have raised hours to 55 and have had the unutterable and indescribable inhumanity to demand that the workers work $4.00 of wages awarded to them by the compliance board."

McCommon said employees of the Atlantic Cotton Mills were working 50 hours instead of 40 hours weekly, as formerly, but that their weekly pay had been increased $3 to $7. He said the hourly pay had not been cut, and while the employees were working increased hours, it meant "an increase in pay to every worker."

The mill president said the amount of the wage restitution was not near the $4,000 figure mentioned by Gorman, and that no employees had been told the money would be deducted from their pay checks. He said the restitution represented wages which learners and cleaners claimed under the NRA but to which they were not entitled.

SON SUCCEEDS FATHER AS COLUMBIA SHERIFF

HARLEM, Ga., June 6.—(P)—Joe P. Crawford, son of the late Sheriff P. A. Crawford, today was elected to the office of sheriff of Columbia county, left vacant by the recent death of his father, on the basis of complete unofficial returns released by Superior Court Clerk Jake Polard.

Crawford received 603 votes to 46 for his opponent, J. P. Knox.

Indian Mounds Excavated at Macon To Be Preserved as National Park

MACON, Ga., June 6.—(P)—A national park expected to attract millions of dollars in tourist trade to Macon and central Georgia today seemed virtually certain of being established.

The proposed park will be in the nature of a government-maintained reserve for preservation and development of scientifically valuable Indian mounds in the vicinity of Old Ocmulgee field.

Less than two years ago the mounds began to attract nationwide attention when scientists learned they were filled with prehistoric relics considered of great archaeological importance.

Excavations of the mounds were begun by the CWA under the direction of Dr. Arthur Kelly, Smithsonian Institution archaeologist, and were continued on a small scale by the FERA. Workers unearthed scores of skeletons, council chamber, an Indian corral, pit houses, burial grounds and relics.

Scientists visiting the fields characterized the mounds and their contents as one of the most valuable of recent finds.

Representatives of the Society for ATHENS GRADUATES FACE JOB OFFERS, NOT COLD WORLD

ATHENS, Ga., June 6.—(P)—This year's 425 graduates at University of Georgia are not looking out at the cold, jobless world that faced graduates of a few years ago, officials of the university said today.

Employment prospects were reported best in recent years.

All 50 graduates of the College of Agriculture will be employed by July 1, said Dean Paul W. Chapman.

This number 12 already have left the campus to meet emergency calls for trained workers.

The demand for foresters is especially great and the college has had telegrams from various parts of the country. Many of the messages say that if graduates are not available, men with three years training will be accepted.

The soil erosion service, the federal program of rural electrification and other recovery programs will absorb all graduates in agricultural engineering.

Sufficient vacancies are available for the 50 home economics graduates, says Miss May E. Creswell, director. For the 100 prospective school teachers, the situation is greatly improved. Jobs will be available for all of them, and salaries are not as poor as they once were.

Business vacancies so far reported are greater than last year.

Of 30 journalism seniors, three-fourths already have job prospects. The small number of pharmacy graduates all have prospects.

BAPTIST ENCAMPMENT TO OPEN AT SHORTER

ROME, Ga., June 6.—The annual state encampments for Baptist young people and their older friends are scheduled to open Saturday night at Shorter College. Speakers from Georgia, other southern states and Canada will appear on the program of the two weeks during which some 400 are expected to be enrolled. Delegates have enrolled from every section of the state, according to Edwin S. Preston, state secretary of Baptist Training Union work.

Miss Frances Worth, Atlanta, and Mrs. Adam Sloan, McDonough, have charge of the plans for the opening banquet on Saturday night. Miss Sibyl Brame, Nashville, Tenn., will be the principal speaker.

The encampment will be in session for two weeks, from June 8 to June 15.

Gain in Farm Loans.

ROME, Ga., June 6.—Loans to farmers in Floyd county this spring by the Production Credit Association amounted to about $55,000, which was twice the amount of the loans last year. A. E. Williamson, manager of the Rome district, announced today. Loans were made this year to approximately 500 farmers.

Maturity dates fall between October 15 and November 15.

Worth Sets Beer Fee.

SYLVESTER, Ga., June 6.—The commissioners of Worth county have fixed the license for beer at $10 per year for retailers. The license for wholesalers has not been fixed.

Applicants for retail license must secure the approval of the commissioner from the district in which they wish to operate. This is a county license and does not apply to dealers who have paid a city license. A much larger number than was expected are handling the brew in Sylvester.

Farmers Grow Wheat.

VALDOSTA, Ga., June 6.—Wheat growing in Lowndes county has been received in a substantial manner this season through government farm rehabilitation work.

A number of farms were rented by the government for farmers who are directed in crop planting, how to live at home being the first consideration. This system required wheat planting and all rehabilitation farms have produced wheat in sufficient quantity to supply the families with flour for the entire year.

Market Creates Interest.

THOMASVILLE, Ga., June 6.—Inquiries already are coming in from produce dealers in other sections seeking to use the facilities to be provided by the state farm market now being established here.

As soon as the packing shed has been erected and details included, operation of the market completed, it is expected produce dealers from over a wide area will utilize the market as a loading center.

Baxley Has Boom.

BAXLEY, Ga., June 6.—Baxley has undergone a remarkable change in its appearance since the erection of so many new brick homes, new stores and renovated stores in old buildings. There has been a steady boom here for the past 12 months.

Civilians Install Officers.

WATKINSVILLE, Ga., June 6.—The Citizens Club installed new officers and initiated new members this week. C. C. Parsons is president; J. W. Arnold, vice president; Harvey Downs, secretary, and Roy Thrasher, district trustee. Parsons was named to represent the club at the national convention at Miami June 16. Thomas L. Asbury, regional director of the extension work at the state agricultural college, was the principal speaker at this week's meeting.

Elbertson Sets License.

ELBERTON, Ga., June 6.—City council has voted to license the sale of beer under the restriction that a cash bond of $100 be posted for forfeiture if a sale is made to a minor or intoxicated person. A delegation of citizens appeared in protest to the action, claiming the license should not be granted because the city voted in the May 15 election by a large majority against it.

County Commissioner O. H. Smith has taken no action for Elbert county.

Blackberries Are Ripe.

SPARTA, Ga., June 6.—The blackberry crop in this section is the best in years and negro boys are reaping a rich harvest peddling them from door to door at a nickel a quart. The berries are of excellent quality and are being purchased by housewives for making jams and preserves.

It is likely that much wine will also be made since it is now lawful to let such fruit ferment, as in olden days.

Stewed Fruits To Blame.

CETINJE, Yugoslavia.—(UP)—Yussuf Kozhar, who died here recently at the reputed age of 136, attributed his longevity to the fact he lived solely on stewed fruit and milk. Kozhar claimed water never had touched his lips in 55 years.

JUDGE DAVIS FREEMAN PASSES AT SAVANNAH

Head of City Court for 27 Years Dies Unexpectedly at Residence.

SAVANNAH, Ga., June 6.—(P)—Judge Davis Freeman, who for 27 years presided over city court of Savannah, died today at his residence here.

Although he had been in ill health for months the passing of the jurist was unexpected. It had been known for some time that Judge Freeman was very ill but recently he had shown signs of improvement.

Judge Freeman was born in Savannah on September 28, 1863. He became judge of the city court in 1908, filling the vacancy caused by the death of Judge Thomas Norwood. He had served continuously since on this bench.

In the primary last September he received the democratic nomination again, and in November he was formally elected for another four-year term. He took the oath of office for the new term which began January 1, 1935.

Funeral services for Judge Freeman will be held tomorrow afternoon at 5 o'clock from the Independent Presbyterian church, Rev. Samuel McPheters Glasgow, pastor, conducting them.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Nellie B. Parish Freeman; two sons, Davis Freeman Jr. and George Parish Freeman; three daughters, Miss Sarah Freeman, Mrs. Hergert Hutton and Miss Esther Freeman; a sister, Miss Georgia Freeman.

THREE NEGROES SLAIN NEAR CRAWFORDVILLE

CRAWFORDVILLE, Ga., June 6.—(P)—Three negroes were slain on a farm seven miles from here today and Sheriff R. M. Moore announced that he was seeking a fourth negro for the murders.

The Crawfordville Advocate-Democrat said the deceased were Rose Cotton; her daughter, Tommie Cotton, and Rube Durham, and that the man being sought was Duke Love.

Reports here said the slayer went to the house where Rose Cotton lived, called for her and shot her as she appeared. Durham, a neighbor, heard the disturbance, rushed in and likewise was shot down. The daughter, Tommie Cotton, ran to seek assistance and was overtaken and slain by the slayer. Her body was dragged to a porch, which was set on fire. The body was almost consumed by the flames.

Pigeon at Doraville.

DORAVILLE, Ga., June 6.—Dr. J. E. Flowers reports a white pigeon with a band on which is inscribed "No. 457" attached to its leg, has been a visitor at his home since Sunday. The owner may recover the bird by getting in touch with him, Dr. Flowers says.

Gain in Farm Loans.

Blackberries Are Ripe.

SPARTA, Ga., June 6.—The blackberry crop in this section is the best in years and negro boys are reaping a rich harvest peddling them from door to door at a nickel a quart. The berries are of excellent quality and are being purchased by housewives for making jams and preserves.

It is likely that much wine will also be made since it is now lawful to let such fruit ferment, as in olden days.

Stewed Fruits To Blame.

CETINJE, Yugoslavia.—(UP)—Yussuf Kozhar, who died here recently at the reputed age of 136, attributed his longevity to the fact he lived solely on stewed fruit and milk. Kozhar claimed water never had touched his lips in 55 years.

Four-Legged Chicken Unusual Dalton Freak

DALTON, Ga., June 6.—Myrtle Deck, 11-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Deck, is the proud owner of a four-legged chicken which she is hopeful of raising and developing from it a special variety of poultry to yield a double crop of frying size drum sticks.

The chicken was presented to Miss Deck by T. J. and W. C. Cox, proprietors of the Forest Hills Poultry Farm, near Dalton, where it was hatched a few days ago. The chick's two extra feet, instead of being useless, are of normal size and position, the chick walking on all four with perfect freedom.

Cox states that the chick was born from pedigree stock and is apparently normal in every other respect.

PAUL LINDSAY RAPS GOVERNOR TALMADGE

EATONTON, Ga., June 6.—(P)—Paul Lindsay, state representative from DeKalb county and long an opponent of Governor Talmadge, told the Eatonton Kiwanis Club today that the poverty-stricken with "high-sounding political platitudes."

Apparently aiming much of his criticism at Governor Talmadge, he recently urged "Jeffersonian democracy" for the nation, Lindsay said:

"You can't feed the hungry millions with the constitution, flavored with Jeffersonian democracy."

He added: "It is indeed unfortunate that, at a time like this, our great state democratic party is in the hands of men whose actions and utterances remind us very forcibly of the scalliwags and carpetbaggers of the sixties."

His address was cheered by the Kiwanis. Lindsay was introduced by State Representative F. S. Batchelor, of Putnam (Eatonton) county.

The speaker praised President Roosevelt for his recovery and referred to the AAA program—which Talmadge also has criticized—as "the long-sought Aladdin's lamp to the agricultural interests of our country."

GAINESVILLE TO HEAR COCKE SPEAK TONIGHT

GAINESVILLE, Ga., June 6.—Georgia's part in the $4,800,000,000 war-relief fund is expected to be outlined here tomorrow night when Eric Cocke, of Atlanta, state director of the National Emergency Council, addresses the annual Chamber of Commerce banquet in the Dixie-Hunt hotel.

Miss Gay Shepperson, state FERA head, is also expected to speak. Guests will include the mayors of the larger towns of the ninth district and the chairmen of the county commissioners of each county, 19 in number.

VEGETABLE EXPERT SOUGHT BY GROWERS

State Urged To Employ Full-Time Specialist To Develop Industry.

SAVANNAH, Ga., June 6.—(P)—A resolution urging that the state agricultural extension service provide a full-time expert to help develop the vegetable industry of the state was adopted here today by the convention of the Georgia Vegetable Growers' Association.

George H. Firor, horticulturist of the extension service, now devotes his interests to both fruits and vegetables, the convention was told.

Firor told the convention that one of the greatest potential fields Georgia farmers could develop was the production of certified seeds and plants.

He said Georgia farmers last year shipped certified tomato plants from 6,000 acres and developed a national market for them.

A. L. Crittendon told of the truck activities on Colonel T. L. Huston's farm at Butler Island, near Brunswick. He said the farm had undertaken the growing of lettuce for the market, and had proven that head lettuce of the finest quality can be produced in Georgia.

"Georgia could supply all demands of the state for lettuce in the early spring and summer," he said. He explained that transportation would offer little expense or trouble, since the producing center is near large consuming areas.

Otis Woodward, of Tifton, was another speaker at the convention, which began yesterday. He said more adequate storage facilities and proper grading would encourage expansion of the south Georgia sweet potato industry, and would reduce annual loss from shrinkage and disease.

The association plans an affiliation with the 125-year-old Georgia Agricultural Society with the latter as a kind of central body.

A proposal for the affiliation was made from the floor of the convention of the vegetable growers yesterday and was ratified last night by the board of directors.

H. Stanley Hastings, of Atlanta, vice president of the agricultural society, in a speech to the growers expressed a hope that the agricultural organization could be reorganized as a sort of clearing house for the cooperation of all organizations of agricultural interests in the state.

BEDSPREAD INDUSTRY TO KEEP NRA SCALE

DALTON, Ga., June 6.—(P)—Candlewick bedspread manufacturers, of north Georgia, North Carolina and Tennessee have voted to continue the present NRA scale of compensation for bedspread workers at home and in plants.

At a meeting here Tuesday, the manufacturers also went on record as opposing deviation from NRA principles.

About $2,000,000 worth of handmade Candlewick bedspreads are shipped annually from Dalton.

GEORGIA ALUMNI BODY NAMES SECRETARY

Major A. J. Colley, of Washington, Elected To Succeed Tom Gray Jr.

ATHENS, Ga., June 6.—(P)—Major A. J. Colley, of Washington, Ga., former commandant of the campus R. O. T. C. organization, has been elected secretary of the Alumni Society of University of Georgia, it was announced today.

He succeeds Tom Gray Jr., who has resigned to practice law in Athens. Colley will take office September 1.

Charles E. Martin, business manager of the University Athletic Association, was named business manager of the Alumni Record. Both selections were made at a meeting of the executive board of the society.

Major Colley retired from the army last year. He has for five years been professor of military science and tactics at the university. He entered the university in 1902, leaving for West Point in 1905, where he graduated in 1909. While here as commandant he completed work for the A. B. degree, which he received in 1930. During the war he served in the Second and Twenty-eighth divisions, and had the rank of lieutenant colonel.

Martin, who is a native of Crawford county, is a graduate of 1912. He was formerly business manager and managing editor of the Athens Banner-Herald. He also saw service in the war as a captain.

COLLEGE UNITS GATHER FOR BENNING TRAINING

Military Students Open Six Weeks' Encampment Under Major Franke.

FORT BENNING, Ga., June 6.—(P)—Military students from five colleges arrived here today for the opening of the six-week encampment held annually for R. O. T. C. units at several schools in the fourth corps area.

Schools represented are Alabama Polytechnic Institute, at Auburn; the University of Alabama, the University of Florida, the University of Tennessee and Georgia School of Technology. The R. O. T. C. students at the Fort Benning camp are enrolled in several branches of the service, including field artillery, engineering corps, ordnance and signal corps.

Major G. H. Franke, of the field artillery, is in command of the camp.

FUNERAL AT FAIRBURN FOR DR. A. R. DANFORTH

FAIRBURN, Ga., June 6.—Funeral services for Dr. A. R. Danforth, 76, of Norcross, will be held tomorrow afternoon from the Fairburn Baptist church. Rev. E. W. Jones will officiate and interment will be in the Fairburn cemetery.

Dr. Danforth was born here April 12, 1859, the son of Colonel Danforth, a well-known lawyer and Confederate veteran, and of Mrs. Aggie Elder Danforth.

He was a practicing physician for 35 years in Atlanta and had retired a short time before his death.

He is survived by his widow, three nieces and one nephew.

Bishop & Poe, local funeral directors, are in charge of the arrangements.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry To Honor Ozzie Nelson at Aperitif Party

By Sally Forth.

OZZIE NELSON, celebrated orchestra leader, was an important factor in the romance of Catherine Molloy and Jim Henry. And in appreciation, Mr. and Mrs. Henry will entertain at an aperitif party at the Piedmont Driving Club this afternoon with the maestro as honor guest. The meeting of the trio took place under Miami's tropical skies in 1931. It was during that winter that the former Miss Molloy met her future husband, a resident of the Florida city.

The fashionable Indian Creek Club, where Ozzie was playing with his orchestra, was a popular rendezvous for the duo. Often Ozzie would drop his baton and stroll over to their table for a brief chat. Ever ready to further a romance, which his observing eyes detected, he would direct his orchestra to play the very softest of love melodies, "Night and Day" and "Dark Eyes" were favorites of Catherine and Jim, and to the strains of these songs their romance culminated in their betrothal.

Of course, Catherine and Jim sought Ozzie soon after his arrival in Atlanta on Wednesday to furnish music for the Tech commencement dances. It was a happy reunion, indeed, and Ozzie's delight over having their paths cross again was expressed when he sat down to the piano and played the familiar airs of their sweetheart days. Sharing honors at the party this afternoon will be Harriet Hilliard, songbird member of Ozzie Nelson's orchestra.

When the graduation procession forms at picturesque Sweet Briar College, up in Virginia, next Tuesday, Atlanta will have a charming representative in Rebecca Young. In addition, Atlanta will shine by reflected glory, for Rebecca is graduating with high honors.

It goes without saying that her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lane mother. She plans to sail on July 3, and what could be nicer than touring the continent with a whole party of one's college mates?

IT SEEMS that Sally can't get off the subject of schoolgirls, but with graduations so much in the air and on everyone's mind, what could be more appropriate? And if you saw lovely Betty Hartwell receiving her diploma at Girls' High school last Tuesday evening, you surely don't blame Sally for clinging to the subject.

Perchance you detected the gleam of pride in Betty's eye, even if you didn't see the exquisite pin and pendant she wore. It is one of her most prized graduation presents, for it formerly belonged to her great-aunt, the late Mrs. James Munroe Armstrong, who wore it when she graduated from Wesleyan College in 1851. The pin is a cluster of leaves from which is suspended a delicate flower cut from a single stone, a glowing garnet. And, most happily, the garnet is Betty's birthstone.

Betty's real name, you know, is Elizabeth Harriet. But did you know that Elizabeth is for her aunt, Mrs. St. Elmo Massengale, and that Harriet is for her grandmother, the late Mrs. Andrew Murray Massengale?

"REUNION in Tampa" could well be named the occasion marking the return tomorrow of Mrs. William Ott Alston and her children from Europe, and their meeting with Mr. Alston, who left yesterday to join his family. Mrs. Alston, Peggy, Frances and Ott Jr. sailed on May 23 from Antwerp, Belgium, following a sojourn of 10 months in Europe. Last September this charming Atlanta matron and her three equally charming children sailed for the Old World, where they established residence. The trip, it will be recalled, carried out a plan cherished for many years by Mr. and Mrs. Alston, in that their children should have the advantages of a year of foreign study and travel. While Mrs. Alston and Frances were in Nice, Peggy pursued her education at the Sorbonne in Paris, and Ott Jr. was studying in Zurich, Switzerland. They spent Easter in Rome, amid the glory of the greatest celebration of Christian feasts. From that time until their sailing date they visited historical spots throughout Italy. With their return to the States tomorrow, and their subsequent return to Atlanta, the Alstons will spend the remaining days of June at the home of Mrs. Alston's brother, Douglas B. Wright, on West Andrews drive, before going to the Tate Mountain Estates for the remainder of the season at their summer home overlooking Lake Sequoyah.

Nisbet-Fields Rites Are Announced

Miss Dorothy Belle Nisbet, daughter of R. H. Nisbet and the late Mrs. Nisbet, and Cyril Ogle Fields, of Cumberland, Ky., were married Tuesday at the College Park Presbyterian church, the Rev. Thomas H. Hill officiating. The bride was given in marriage by her father. Her attendants were Misses Elizabeth Center and Evelyn Fields, maids of honor, and Miss Madelyn Thompson, cousin of the bride, acted as junior maid of honor.

Cecil Ballard, of Loyal, Ky., was best man. The ushers were Keith and R. H. Nisbet, brothers of the bride. Mrs. John Nisbet, organist, and Mrs. Thomas H. Hill, violinist, rendered the music. Frederick Beers sang "At Dawning" and "I Love You Truly." Misses Elizabeth Center and Evelyn Fields wore shirtwaist model frocks of blue net. They wore large pink hats with slippers to match. Miss Madelyn Thompson wore a pale pink frock of pink net. They carried bouquets of talisman roses, larkspur and delphinium. The bride's gown was of white triple-sheer crepe, made shirtwaist model. She wore a large white hat. The bride's bouquet was of bride's roses and lilies of the valley. Mrs. Fields, mother of the bridegroom, wore dark blue crepe with matching hat and bouquet of pink rosebuds. Mr. and Mrs. Fields left after the ceremony for Florida. Upon their return they will reside in Cumberland, Kentucky.

T. E. L. Class.
A Mother Goose Nursery Rhyme Party was enjoyed by members of Druid Hills Baptist T. E. L. class recently. Each group drew, with crayons, pictures representing nursery rhymes, prizes being all-day suckers. A short business session was held. Mrs. W. L. Shackelford's group served punch during the social hour and Mrs. Byron Mathews' group served as hostesses.

Open House Planned.

Mrs. C. Greenberg entertains at open house on Sunday at her home, 508 Washington street, honoring her daughter, Mrs. Jack Holtz, of Washington, D. C. Miss Ruth Silvergleid, of Brooklyn, N. Y., and her sons, Dr. Irving Greenberg and Sol Greenberg. Mrs. Holtz and Miss Silvergleid are visiting Mrs. Greenberg, having come to attend the graduation last evening of Sol Greenberg from Boys' High school and for the graduation on Monday evening of Dr. Greenberg from Emory University medical school. Mrs. Greenberg was hostess recently honoring her nephew, Aaron Halpern, who sails from New York today on the S. S. Aquatania for Europe.

Miss Sinkowitz Weds Mr. Katz, Of Charlottesville

Beauty and simplicity characterized the marriage last Sunday evening of Miss Sara Sinkowitz to Jack Katz, of Charlottesville, Va. The ceremony took place at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Sinkowitz on Oakdale road, and was performed by Rabbi Harry H. Epstein. Elaborate decorations prevailed in the rooms where the guests assembled.

Miss Hannah Kaplan, of Birmingham, Ala., sang "Until," with Mrs. Morris Greenberg, pianist, and Abe Bressler, violinist, accompanying her. Miss Erna Harriet Bressler was the junior bridesmaid. She wore a blue net frock fashioned with wide ruffles on the skirt and tied with a wide blue sash at the waist. She wore a bandeau of blue flowers around her head. Her bouquet was a nosegay of pastel flowers.

Mrs. Sinkowitz was her daughter's matron of honor. She wore an apricot lace gown fashioned with a slight train. Her shoulder bouquet was of orchids and lilies of the valley. Miss Frances Sinkowitz, sister of the bride, was maid of honor and she wore a peach mouseline de soie gown fashioned with a ruffled cape and a ruffled skirt forming a slight train. She wore an aquamarine taffeta sash and slippers. Her head ornament was a bandeau of fresh pastel flowers. She carried an old-fashioned bouquet of pastel flowers.

Little Miss Hershine Bergman was flower girl and she wore a frock of white net over blue tulle. She wore a bandeau of flowers and carried a nosegay of sweet peas.

The bride descended the stairs alone and was met by her father, Nathan Sinkowitz, by whom she was given in marriage. She wore an ivory satin model with alien lace, puffed sleeves held at the wrists with a lace band. The bodice featured a high neckline with a criss-cross effect in the center and a narrow satin belt tied at the waist. The skirt, with built-in train, was made along bias lines. The veil, having been worn by the bride's aunt, Mrs. Hyman Bergman, was of Brussels lace fastened to her head by a hair of the lace edge and sprays of orange blossoms. She carried a lace handkerchief which her mother used at her marriage. She carried an old-fashioned bouquet edged with real lace. The bouquet was made of orchids and lilies of the valley.

Mike Alterman was best man.

Following the ceremony the bride's mother and father entertained at a reception. Receiving with them were the bride and bridegroom, and the bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Harry Katz, of Brooklyn, N. Y.

Miss Regina Weinberg kept the bride's book and serving punch were Misses Miriam Bressler, Maymie Lurelly and Sadya Kaplan, of Birmingham, Ala.

Mrs. Harry Katz wore a flowered chiffon gown and her shoulder bouquet was gardenias.

Following the reception the bride and bridegroom left for Charlottesville, Va., where they will make their home. The bride traveled in a three-piece beige California knit suit. Her accessories were of brown.

Out-of-town guests attending the wedding included Mrs. Harry Katz, of New York; Mr. and Mrs. Joe Levy, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Levy, Mrs. B. Levy, Misses Sayde and Hannah Kaplan, Irwin Kaplan, all of Birmingham, Ala.; Mr. and Mrs. M. S. Sinkowitz, of Charlotte, N. C.; and Hunter Perry, of Charlottesville, Va.

Miss Margaret Dyer Is Complimented

Mrs. C. B. Funderburk and Mrs. J. N. Watson were co-hostesses Wednesday at a shower honoring Miss Margaret Dyer, lovely bride-elect of June, at the home of Mrs. Watson in West End. The table was covered with a beautiful lace table cloth and centered with tallisman roses.

Present were Mesdames Kelly Harwell, Jack Simmons, Homer Doster, Jessie Medlin, Jimmy Reese, Earnest Collins, William Biggs, C. B. Funderburk, J. H. Dyer, E. P. Livingston, Jimmy Mathews, J. N. Watson, Lucille Justice, Lucille Buckley, Emory Lower, J. H. Allen, E. C. Lyndon, Ira Collins, Willard Hay, and Misses Grace Kerlin, Margaret Dyer, Mary Rowan, Kay Duncan, Maggie Lou Hayes, Dorothy Cathcart, Myrtis Hay, Frances Schilling, Bessie Goodwin, Thelma Kirby and Mildred Ligon. A number of parties have been planned honoring Miss Dyer and Miss Grace Kerlin, whose double wedding takes place in June. Among them will be a buffet supper given by Mrs. J. H. Dyer at her home on Park circle, honoring the bride party, tomorrow.

Violin Recital. Ruth Dabney Smith will present a group of advanced violin students in recital this evening at 8:30 o'clock, at her home. The players are Joan Heilman, Mary Carolyn Lee, Mary Quigley, Hazel Taylor and Carroll George.

VETERAN RELIEVED OF CONSTIPATION BY NATURAL FOOD

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN Corrects His Condition

Here is an interesting, unsolicited letter: "I have used Kellogg's ALL-BRAN for about 4 years, and find it a wonderful relief for constipation." While in Government Service in the P. L. I contracted constipation* in 1928-29.

"I consider your ALL-BRAN in terms of millions, instead of the cost of a box of pills, for it surely has saved me. I eat ALL-BRAN every morning."—F. L. Wylie, Visalia, Calif.

*Constipation due to insufficient "bulk" in meals.

Research shows Kellogg's ALL-BRAN supplies gentle "bulk" to aid regular habits. ALL-BRAN is also rich in vitamin B and iron.

ALL-BRAN is a delicious laxative food... far better than patent medicines. Two tablespoonfuls daily are usually sufficient. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Get the red-and-green package at your grocer's. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Miss Mildred Chesnut Weds Mr. Brown at Church Ceremony

Miss Mildred Virginia Chesnut became the bride of Paul Howard Brown, an impressive ceremony taking place last evening at St. Paul Methodist church. Rev. Henry H. Jones performed the ceremony at 9 o'clock in the presence of a large gathering of relatives and friends of the couple.

Church Decorations. The church was beautifully decorated for the nuptials. The choir loft was decorated with ferns and five seven-branched candelabra holding unshaded tapers flanked the center arrangement, which consisted of a seven-branched candelabrum, the base arising from a mound of Easter lilies and white gladioli. In front of this a white satin pillow was placed upon which the bride couple knelt. The family pews were marked with bows of white tulle.

A beautiful program of nuptial music rendered on the organ by Mrs. Annie Mae Norton consisted of favorite selections of the bride, including "Narcissus," by Nevin; "Viennese Melody," by Kriesler; "Estrellita," by Ponce; "Venitiam Love Song," by Nevin; and "Ah, Sweet Mystery of Life," by Victor Herbert. Carl Jones sang "At Dawning" and Mrs. Arthur Styrone sang "Because." The "Bridal Chorus" from Lohengrin heralded the entrance of the bride party, and the "Wedding March" from "Midsommer Night's Dream," by Mendelssohn, was used as a recessional. "As a Wild Rose" was softly played during the ceremony.

Wedding Party. Ushers were Aubrey Tucker, of Chattanooga; David Blankenship, Johnny Groves, and Henry Chesnut, brother of the bride. The groomsmen were Cole Brown, brother of the bridegroom; Peyton Champion, Charlie Whipple, and Ernest Miles. Gene Lee acted as best man. The bridesmaids were Misses Averilla Sheridan, Irene Chesnut, sister of the bride; Elizabeth Jenkins and Mrs. William Dean Kelley. Miss Louise Chesnut was the bride's sister's maid of honor. The attendants were gowned alike in apricot lace worn over tulle. The dresses were fashioned along princess lines, featuring square necks. On either side were rhinestone clips, gifts of the bride. Their sandals matched their dresses. The bridesmaids carried heart-shaped bouquets, centered with pink snapdragons and edged with yellow ribbons.

Brilliant Pan-Hellenic Ball Features Tech Dance Program

Highlighting the Tech commencement social program was the Pan-Hellenic ball held last evening at the Tech armory, the affair assembling several hundred members of the college contingent.

The armory was gaily decorated for the brilliant occasion with numerous Tech pennants and banners. Emblazoned on the walls were the emblems of the Tech fraternities, each outlined with colored lights. The Georgia Tech colors of gold and white were featured in the grand march, with the young ladies wearing white evening gowns and their escorts wearing white suits with gold-colored ties.

Leading the Pan-Hellenic grand march were John Ridley, president of the Inter-Fraternity Council, and Miss Mary Elizabeth Barge. They were assisted by the other officers and their dates, including Clarence Roberts, vice president, with Miss Tad Goodwin, of Gainesville; Harry Roberts, secretary; Wright Paulk, treasurer, with Miss Frances Butters, and George Hart, servant at arms, with Miss Mary King Hart.

Another important event of yesterday was the sophomore tea-dance, which assembled the younger set at the armory between the hours of 8 and 7 o'clock.

Today's events include the elaborate junior prom which will be held this evening, and the reception to be given this afternoon by Dr. and Mrs. M. L. Brittain in compliment to the members of the senior class. Leading the prom this evening will be Dan Holsenbeck, president of the junior class, with Miss Ellen Fleming and Culver Kidd with Miss Frances Burns and Mason Williams. The event marks the juniors' formal introduction as seniors.

The chaperons for the dances are Mr. and Mrs. Phil B. Narmore, Mr. and Mrs. J. Nixon, Mr. and Mrs. Hal Hart, Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Butters, Mrs. W. T. Paulk, Dean and Mrs. Vernon Skiles, Dean and Mrs. Floyd Fields, Dr. and Mrs. M. L. Brittain, Mrs. Richard Beard, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Griffin, Mr. and Mrs. George Griffin, Mrs. M. H. Ridley, Mr. and Mrs. O. A. Barge, Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Holsenbeck, Dr. H. B. Friedman, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Fleming, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Kidd and Mr. and Mrs. C. T. Fugitt.

Featuring the senior hop on Wednesday evening was the grand march and lead-out, which was led by James Paulk, president of the class, with Miss Frances Butters.

The young belles who participated in the march wore white evening gowns, and their escorts donned the caps and gowns to be worn for graduation.

Spring flowers were used as the decorations, and following the bridge game supper was served on the individual tables. Mrs. Jane S. Barnett assisted the hosts in entertaining the guests, who numbered 20.

BREAK O'DAY!
By Ralph McGill

It is noon when you come to a stop before the window. All about you people are going some place to eat or they are coming from some place where they ate. And some of them are picking their teeth with the little wooden toothpicks which are in a dish by the cashier's desk. And all of them have that preoccupied look which people get at the noon hour.

But you are stopped before the window and you are looking at the rods and the reels and the minnow bucket. And you can smell the damp peppermint smell of willow trees on river banks and the smell that fishing worms have in the damp earth of the can.

You stand there with a half grin on your face thinking about that time on a river in Alabama and of how you were betting a dollar a fish. And your luck was running and everywhere you dropped the minnow the crappie or the small-mouth bass struck and you pulled them in.

And you grin some more when you think how the other two men in the boat swore at you and your luck, and changed your position in the boat, but the luck still held and you kept catching them. And you think about the bass that struck three times as if he had a personal grievance at the minnow and so on.

And you draw a deep breath and remember a hot night on the Homosassa river when the trout were striking a red-wobler plug. And you can smell the river and the trees and the wind which brings up the smell of the gulf, which is just eight miles away. And the big trout strike and sometimes there are doubles and you both swear mightily in excitement.

And you grin some more thinking about that day off Indian pass and the Apalachicola river when the tarpon were leaping in the sun and wouldn't strike. And you felt sort of silly sitting in the swivel chair on the aft end of the boat with the sun cooking your face and arms. The tarpon kept leaping, all silver in the sun, and finally one took the lure and you felt the tug and tried to keep the line taut without pulling so there wouldn't be any slack. But he leaped high and shook his head and was gone from the hook. And not again all day did they strike.

You keep standing there with the smile on your face, which smile must look daffy to the people who pass with the toothpicks in their mouths who maybe have just had the plate lunch with the red snapper or the baked trout. But you are smiling because you remember that hot morning off the coast at Biloxi when one of the men had been on a party the night before and had a hangover and that morning he hooked an ugly-looking fish with wings. And when he yanked on the line the fish flew straight at him and his nerves gave way and he dropped the pole and yelled for help. And the ugly fish lay there gasping in the bottom of the boat with its little eyes looking mean.

You stand there looking at the minnow bucket and the reels and the rods and the noise of feet on the pavement sounds far away, like hundreds of kisses repeated over and over in quick succession. And then you wonder why you are so foolish as to keep standing there looking at the things, and go on back to the office.

The ferns and the geraniums look very pretty in the window box and you pull up the typewriter and try to think of something to write and the only thing you can think of for a long, long time is boats and rivers and bays and fish and tackle.

THE LITTLE SARDINE.

The Little Sardine did himself a good job of golf yesterday at Oakmont where the course did terrible things to the boys.

I refer to Gene Sarazen, the gentleman who got himself a deuce on the par five 15th at Augusta in the recent Masters' tournament to tie Craig Wood and then go on the next day to win the play-off.

Yes, sir, the Little Sardine is in there with a 75, three over par, and he is in the ideal spot. Just a few of them are in there ahead of him and he will be ready to start shooting again today.

He wants to win this one. I recall him sitting there in the clubhouse after he had won the Masters'.

"I'm going back home and train," he said. "I'm going to run over those hills and train as a prize fighter trains for a fight. I may finish last or first. But I'll be there."

He's a grim contender, is the Little Sardine. And it would be good to see him come charging through again.

OLIN DUTRA STILL IN IT.

Olin Dutra still is in the running. He had a 77 but a 77 wasn't bad at Oakmont yesterday. He's another whom golf fans like to see do well.

Never will forget him at Augusta and the Masters' tournament. He had it in his grasp, with Wood and Sarazen not even close, until he had one terrible, weird round at the start of the final 18 holes.

And that night at the tournament party he was explaining it. One drive went behind a tree, the only tree on the course. A pitch shot rolled an inch too far and hung on a bunker. Another rolled a bit short and stopped in a bunker. Another hit

Rowe Blows After Six Hitless Innings, But Tigers Beat Indians, 10-9.

DETROIT, June 6.—(AP)—School-boy Rowe blew up in an amazing manner after pitching six hitless innings today but despite their sky-rocket ride the Tigers managed to defeat Cleveland, 10 to 9, in ten innings and move into a tie with the Indians for third place in the American league standing.

The losers slipped behind the idle Chicago White Sox and only a heavy rainstorm prevented the possibility of further changes in the standing. The teams were scheduled for a double-header to settle yesterday's tied second game but rain which had threatened all through the afternoon began to fall heavily after the finish and the afternoon game was postponed.

While Rowe was making his fine start, the Tigers slugged Walter Stewart and Ralph Winegarner. The latter ran up a 7-0 lead with the aid of Gerald Walker's third-inning home.

Once Hal Trosky had broken the hitting tie with a double, the Indians didn't stop until they had crossed six runs in the seventh. Rowe was nipped for six hits before a man was retired and a seventh before he gave up the mound. To Elton Hoesett, who yielded one more blow that inning. An error by Walker contributed to the tally.

Cleveland belted out three more runs, two of them on Joe Voss's triple, to take the lead in the eighth only to have Detroit tie it up again as Goose Goslin smacked a single off Lloyd Brown to bring the bases full.

Joe Sullivan came in to hold the Indians in check in the last two innings while the Tigers came through to win in the tenth on Charley Gehring's double and Goslin's single.

The Goose, who hit a triple and three singles to knock in five runs, was the leader in the belting battle. Bruce Campbell, of the Indians, and Hank Greenberg, of Detroit, made three hits each.

Crackers Nosed Out in First Game of Series by Barons, 4-3

Milan's Release Shock To Dixie Baseball Fans

Birmingham Bankers Said To Be Behind New Move—Manager Handicapped.

By Jimmy Jones.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., June 6.—The release of Clyde Milan as manager of the Birmingham Barons club tonight was received with surprise and regret by members of the Crackers, who today opened a three-game series here.

Milan, although he already knew of the action before the game, was active and aggressive on the coaching lines as his team won over Atlanta 4-3. Several times he took issue with Umpire Grigg back of the plate on balls and strikes.

"It's a shame. That fellow, in my opinion, was among the best managers in the minor leagues," declared Harry Kelley, the Cracker ace right-hander, who has known Milan since he first came into the league as the manager at Memphis in 1927. Kelley pitched for him that year.

"I never saw him pull a bad play or knew his teams to play dumb baseball," Kelley added.

Manager Eddie Moore, Vice President Earl Mann likewise was shocked at Milan's removal. They both considered him a very capable and smart manager.

FORCED MOVE.

It is said that the move was forced on Billy West, the president of the Barons, and a close friend of Milan, by the board of directors, including several bankers, into whose hands the club has fallen since Rick Woodward's retirement from active ownership.

West could not keep back the tears as he handed Milan his release.

"I've got to get a job somewhere, but I don't know what I shall do right now," Milan told newspapermen tonight. He expects, however, to get a job as scout or manager soon. His best chance for a scout's job will lie with Washington, since he is well liked by Clark Griffith. Milan was a great star with the Senators in his playing days.

It was rumored back during the winter that Milan would get the manager's job at Chattanooga and he may yet unless "Mule" Shirley hears to the contrary.

HANDICAPPED.

Injuries and ordinary material has been a handicap to Milan since his team won the pennant and Dixie series in 1931 beating the great Dizzy Dean and other Houston stars. It is some what ironic that with business conditions improving here and the club drawing better, Milan's team again has run into the injury jinx.

THOMAS LOSES PITCHING DUEL TO BILL HUGHES

Atlanta Fails To Hit With Men on Bases; Bud Rapped Early.

By Jimmy Jones.

RICKWOOD FIELD, BIRMINGHAM, Ala., June 6.—That ball, which was supposed to be in Birmingham failed to materialize for our floundering Crackers today.

They discovered that the Barons, who had just finished dropping three straight to Knoxville, are still in the league as Clyde Milan's seventh-placers shaded them in the series opener here, 4-3, in a first-rate pitchers' battle between "Bud" Thomas and Bill Hughes.

Losing this game was no disgrace, for it was close all the way and the hits about the same, but the disappointing fact remains that they have four straight losses, their longest losing streak of the season, and they have won only two games of their last eight starts.

NO HITTING POWER.

Today's game likewise was the third in five days which they have been hit by a one-run margin. The best explanation of this is that not only the outfield, but even Alex Hooks who has been so sensational at first base, have not been hitting their weight on this trip and the ball club has missed this punch sorely in the pinch. In fact unless there is more hitting from these quarters, the losing streak is apt to extend longer.

The club is still getting reasonably good pitching, the kind that ought to win, but the tying and winning runs have been left on base too often, and the infielders doing just about all the hitting that is being done.

Thomas pitched good ball today. Any pitcher who holds the opposition to four runs is doing all right, but the Barons rapped "Bud" rather sharply in the early innings and the Crackers got only one hit off Hughes after the fourth inning. Hill and Lipscomb tripled in the first inning, but they got only one run out of that. This, gentlemen, is the kind of hitting which has featured this trip, which incidentally has a series of hanging on the ropes in an effort to explain these losses.

LINEUP CHANGED.

Manager Eddie Moore shook up his lineup again today, benching Harris and placing Oona in center. The latter got one hit and fielded well, but he is yet to produce any of the power he displayed last year when he hit 17 home runs and drove in 104 runs in a fifth place Cracker club. Harris has been hitting in streaks and has not been able to strike a consistent stride since he got nine consecutive hits on the road several weeks ago.

The Crackers, if they snap out of it and take the remaining two games here, may return home Sunday still hanging on to their slim lead, which seemed to be gone today.

Bobby Durham, the only Cracker to turn in a victory at New Orleans, will face the Barons tomorrow. His opponent will be Lou McEvoy, ex-Tanker, who is being looked upon as being exactly the opposite of Durham, being just about a 50-50 pitcher in the Coast league. Schmidt pitched one inning at New Orleans Tuesday and didn't look so good, but he may be all right his next start.

The only other change in the lineup will be Palmisano catching. Harry Kelley will work Saturday's game here and Jim Lindquist will oppose him in the series-opener in Atlanta Sunday.

GETS EARLY LEAD.

The Crackers put Thomas out in front, 2-0, today. Scoring once in each, the first and second innings, he first, after James, fled out, Hughes grooved one for Johnny Hill and the young third baseman saluted him for three bases. Hill held three as Moore grounded out, Trapp to Clancy, but "Big" Lipscomb, that great youngster, came through with a terrific drive to right center for three bases, scoring Hill. But Hooks' best effort was a deep fly to right and Hughes escaped further damage.

Oona opened the second with a single to center, but McCaskill forced him at second. Then Buster Chatham, who had a big day, pulled one down the left field lines for a double, McCaskill scoring. Thomas fled to center and James walked, but the Crackers' hopes of getting another run expired as Hill lifted to Ward.

The Barons came back and tied it up with two in their second. Epps walked with one out and Hooks made a nice stop of Malinosky's bounding drive, but failed to turn it into a double play. Hughes, whose batting average is .197, doubled to right to score Epps and then scored himself as Jack Ward, the erstwhile Pelican, singled to left.

HOWELL TRIPLES.

Two more Birmingham runs came in the third before Thomas settled down. Ruble doubled. Cox sacrificed him to third. Dixie Howell, the Alabama star which fell on Stanford in the Rose Bowl, tripled, scoring Ruble. Trapp beat out a hit to first as Thomas slipped in fielding the ball.

CLYDE MILAN IS RELEASED BY BIRMINGHAM

Baron Owner Decides on Move as First Step in Rebuilding.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., June 6.—(AP)

Release of Clyde Milan as manager of the Birmingham Barons was announced tonight by W. A. West, president of the Birmingham baseball association.

A permanent successor to Milan has not been chosen, West said, and Bill Hughes, Barons scout, will be in charge of the team temporarily.

Pierre was recalled tonight from a scouting trip in Florida and Bud Clancy, first baseman, will be in charge of the team until he returns.

Release of Milan was decided upon, West said, as the next step in a reorganization intended to put the team on a winning basis, following failure of several changes in personnel to bring an improvement in the Barons' play.

Milan came to Birmingham as manager in 1930, succeeding Johnny Lobsenz, who had led the team to Southern and Dixie championships in 1931 but since that year the Barons have not been championship contenders.

Milan will return to his home in Clarksville, Texas, tomorrow night and said he probably will not attempt another baseball connection this year.

There have been rumors during the past year that he would become manager of Chattanooga but these have been persistently denied.

Before becoming a minor league manager, Milan was a star outfielder with Washington. Before joining the Barons, he had managed teams at Memphis and New Haven and was manager of the Senators for several months.

Windsor Lad Wins Caronation Cup Race

EPSON DOWNS, England, June 6.

(AP)—M. H. Benson's Windsor Lad, Derby winner of last year, today won the Caronation cup by a length and a half from Lord Woolavington's Easton with H. E. Crom Ewing's Carmanus third and Benson's Beresford fourth. Windsor Lad and Easton each started at even money. The race was run over the Derby course of a mile and a half.

and then Clancy hit a long fly to Oona to score Howell.

Thomas put the screws on Birmingham after this inning, and began blasting the ball in there from then on, but the damage had been done.

The Crackers' best effort in the fourth resulted in one more run and they should have had more. After Oona popped to Howell, McCaskill followed over third and Chatham followed with a triple to right center to score him. But again the Cracker punch was lacking with Chatham reaching third, Dixie Howell, the Alabama star which fell on Stanford in the Rose Bowl, tripled, scoring Ruble. Trapp beat out a hit to first as Thomas slipped in fielding the ball.

Only a small crowd attended the game today, as the Barons have been going terribly. Among the spectators was Jack Meagher, the popular football coach at Auburn, who hopes to get the Plainsmen out of the doldrums this year.

Henry Grady Field Dedicated in Night Game

The newly lighted soft-ball diamond at Henry Grady field was dedicated last night by appropriate ceremonies before the game between Rich's and Davison-Paxon. Left to right: Raymond A. FIELD DEDICATED BY FAST GAME

Henry Grady field, named for the famous editor of The Constitution of some years ago, was dedicated last night under lights with appropriate ceremonies as two Atlanta diamond ball teams, in the FERA-sponsored league, met in a hotly contested game.

It was another game of the department store series and it saw Davison-Paxon even the series with Rich's, winning 10 to 10, to make the games stand at one-all.

Rich's managers were trying to send mental projections to Harry Meche over at Auburn as the game went along into the seventh and final inning. They wanted the Georgia football coach to come over and deliver a pep talk to two of his former football players.

Yank Ludwig, who used to play center at Georgia; and Dick Maxwell, former end for the Bulldogs, pitched for Rich's and were a bit too generous with free passes. Maxwell, however, was playing with a badly swollen leg received in sliding to a base in a former game, and Ludwig's arm was ailing.

Davison-Paxon, however, earned the game by their seventh-inning attack. Both teams had big innings. Davison-Paxon had their last.

A tremendous and enthusiastic crowd of some 4,000 people saw the game. It was the first one played under lights at the Henry Grady field. The FERA is sponsoring the largest and most successful diamond ball league in the city.

In the ceremonies before the game Candler Dobbs presented a handsome silver cup as a trophy for the championship series to the winner of the two-base hits, Chatham, McCaskill, Hughes, Ruble; three-base hits, Hill, Lipscomb, Chatham, Howell; sacrifices, Cox, Epps; stolen bases, Hooks, Trapp; left on base, Atlanta 6, Birmingham 8; bases on balls, off Thomas 5, off Hughes 2; struck out, by Thomas 1, by Hughes 2; umpires, Griggs and Rick Campbell. BAER GETS MAD, PUMMELS MATES IN ROUGH WORK

Champion Gets Closer to Normal Training at Asbury Park.

By Edward J. Neil.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., June 6.—(AP)—Things are getting closer to normal in the training camp of Max Baer, heavyweight champion, who defends his title against James J. Braddock, the former world champion, on Long Island a week from tonight.

First Dynamite Jackson, the California negro who thinks Max is his sparring partner, staggered the champion a couple of times with right-hand belts to the chin, and they Max went native.

He bloodied young Eddie Haughton's nose and nearly tore his sides away with body punches. Then he made Bob Frazee, a negro heavy weight who is pinned together on one side with adhesive tape, retire from the sunlit arena by the sea because lightning flashes were winking through his head, result of an accumulation of rights to the chin.

TAPED UP.

"If he didn't have that tape on his side," Baer explained to the 100 spectators that lolled around while he casually boxed 11 rounds, "I think I'd tear him up."

Bob apparently had done something to displease the master.

The assembled experts, who have been peering at the champion's efforts in an attempt to determine what, if any, physical condition he has attained, know as much as they do about the grinning, heavily weighted who is pinned together on one side with adhesive tape, retire from the sunlit arena by the sea because lightning flashes were winking through his head, result of an accumulation of rights to the chin.

He's in shape, though. He's on his toes and he boxes pretty good, and, though he doesn't ever do a punch like he's ready to tear every loose any time he wants to. Baer is preparing for Braddock with masterful disdain, for he feels he can punch the challenger up and deliver him in sections to his corner any time he feels the urge. The one punch he really practices occasionally is a right-hand uppercut to the jaw. He throws it lightly whenever the opportunity affords.

BAER IN SHAPE.

Braddock Appears In Perfect Condition.

LAKE SHEDRAKE, N. Y., June 6.—(AP)—State Athletic Commissioner Bill Brown, who a year ago almost blasted the Max Baer-Camera bout off the boards with his charge that Baer was "in no shape for a title fight," today looked in on Jimmy Braddock and found nothing amiss with the 'Alabama' Pitts Cheered In His Baseball 'Debut'

Former Sing Sing Athlete Joins Albany Club After Big Reception at Syracuse.

By Jack Diamond.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., June 6.—(UP)—Edwin "Alabama" Pitts' Horatio Alger day came to a thrilling climax here tonight beneath the brilliant floodlights of Municipal stadium.

The famous Sing Sing athlete, paroled from prison this morning, was presented as a member of the Albany baseball team before 3,000 wildly cheering fans by Martin L. Cadin, former Syracuse chief of police.

Escorted into town by a police motorcycle escort, the 24-year-old southerner joined the Senators officially tonight despite his "banning" by Judge Bramham, league chief.

Bramham tonight relented and agreed to place Pitts' case in the hands of the association's executive committee. He telegraphed John Evers, Albany president.

Pitts will return to Albany with the team tonight.

Pitts didn't blame Bramham for opposing his entrance into baseball as a player, but he said, "Every one is entitled to his own opinion," he said.

REHABILITATED.

Pitts' efforts toward rehabilitation are under the guidance of Warden Lewis E. Lawes—"the grandest guy in the world"—who viewed the numerous baseball offers which came to the youth as a splendid resume of people to help an ex-convict resume his place in society.

"I've been in this place over 30 years," said the warden at his breakfast table when Pitts came over to his house for the first time. "I've never seen anything like this. It's magnificent."

The young Alabamian, who entered prison as a nonentity, walked out jauntily through the penitentiary's massive gates this morning as a national celebrity.

Flashlights flickered and newswall cameras ground as Pitts embraced his mother, Mrs. Irma Pitts Rudd—"the best part of the picture."

He had $58.32 in the pockets of his well-worn gray suit, wore a gray shirt and red tie.

A coat of tan and a sun-peeled nose made him look like a young college athlete.

Pitts' treasury consisted of a $20 gift from the state and $38.32 which he had earned as a coal passer and gardener at the warden's home.

GREETED JOHN LAW.

John Law, former Notre Dame gridiron star and prison athletic director, was on hand to salute his most illustrious protégé.

After going to the Warden Lawes' home to bid his sponsor farewell, "Alabama" rode to the railroad station in the warden's limousine, accompanied by Mrs. Lawes, her 13-year-old daughter, Cheri, and his mother.

Then he boarded the New York Central train for Albany.

His new station in life was emphasized by the glittering array of linen and silver on the Pullman diner, in decided contrast to the plain wooden board on which the prison inmates eat with tin utensils.

"I want to see Babe Ruth hit a home run," he said, as he proceeded with breakfast. "We always used to read about the Babe up there."

LIKES THE "BABE."

"I'm not going to argue about the merits of the Babe's case. Some said that he had received an awful lot from baseball. But others argued that he had also given it a great deal. It doesn't matter how able you are. It's how hard you try."

"Eight years was like an awfully long time for me. I still feel like I'm dreaming."

McLarnin Signed For Garden Fight

NEW YORK, June 6.—(AP)—"Pop" Foster, manager of Jimmy McLarnin, former welterweight champion, said tonight he had closed with Madison Square Garden for McLarnin to meet either Tony Canoneri or Lou Brouillard, New Haven middleweight, later in the summer.

THE LOVE FLIGHT

By JANE DIXON

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE:

Anne Austin, the family fortune wiped out in the crash, her mother dead and her father, a New York banker, a suicide, cannot bring herself to marry Craig Beasley, black son of a "really" family which moves in the same circles as did the Austins. A score of times she holds off his proposal, the last at a hectic Anne party given by the Beasleys. Down to her last dime, Anne becomes lady's maid to Mrs. Adolph Hoag, wife of a multimillionaire sausage king, whose bizarre Palm Beach estate is called Bois Joli. Anne takes the name of Anna Brest but Mrs. Hoag, whom the servants address as Madame, calls her Anne. Anne likes Carl but avoids him, thinking there is something between Berta and Carl; then their most unexpected meeting, in the garden, the misunderstanding is cleared up and Anne is very happy as they sit together in the moonlight. While shopping, Anne meets Mrs. Beasley, tells her she is Mrs. Hoag's maid, not her guest, and swears her to secrecy so Bruno will not tell Craig. Dolph, Hoag's nephew, brings a party of young friends to Bois Joli. The hulking Dolph tries to make love to Anne and she is fighting him off when Hoag appears, Mrs. Hoag's maid, and she is taken away by Madame. Berta announces that a "real" relation of Anne's is descending, waiting to see her. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

INSTALLMENT XIV.

"Pulling the hoity-toity, huh?" His voice was thick, his coarse lips loose. "Chuck it, baby. I gotcha. Gotcha right, see? Too good to go out on a lil' racket with Dolph, huh? Not too good for a go with a chauffeur, though. Rather have the chauffeur, the scullery maid's cast-off, huh? An' you pulling the hoity-toity on me. Ha, ha, ha—ho, ho—" Gorge and suppressed laughter were swelling his fat neck until it extended beyond where the line of his jaw should have been. Neck and face were not red. They were livid crimson.

Anne thought, "A blood vessel will burst. That will still his foul tongue and stop him tormenting me. The scullery maid? Carl, of course. The scullery maid? Berta, Berta had been spreading poison again. She remembered now—a fleeting glimpse of Berta at the back of the house as she drove away with Carl that morning. Berta had found a ready victim for her poison. Anne laughed, too. The laugh was harsh, the scorn in it so real, so stinging, that it was as though fingers squeezed the noisome taunt from Dolph's throat. He batted his little eyes, all but lost his balance. "You've no idea how absurd you look," Anne said evenly, "resembling some great shaggy creature out of the zoo. With a chain and a spiked collar, you'd be perfect. The fellow Anne had expected came—deep, menacing, like a thunderclap. The creature advanced on her, waving his arms, rolling his head. Fear had gone out of Anne now and all weakness. She felt adequate.

AUNT HET

"They say she's kind o' wild, but there ain't no meanness in the heart of a girl that goes without nice clothes so she can help her old parents." (Copyright, 1935, for The Constitution.)

SALLY'S SALLIES

"I came to—I came up—" he began. "Talk up! You got a voice," Madame snapped. "I come to tell you the new rose bushes from Hambourg—three buds they got already—and I find the girl fighting, fighting to get away from the swine, Dolph. I try to pull him away. He is crazy strong, so I hit him hard, hard as I can. Then he lets go and sits down on the floor." Madame's eyes became two hot steel drills. They bored into and through the slouching Dolph. "So you're at it again," she rasped. "After I warned you to let Effie alone. You're gonna pay for this, my fine young nephew. You hear me? You're gonna pay." "I didn't mean it to go so far, honest I didn't, Aunt," Dolph whined. "I asked her for a kiss—she dared strong with a strength that is neither bone nor sinew nor the sum of them. She stood still, only her nostrils quivering like those of a high-bred horse waiting the signal at a barrier. When the thick arms drew together to encircle her she stepped swiftly to one side, bending forward, then gliding under the arm to safety on the other side. Dared she try now for the door to the gown room? No. Time too short. Over there, behind the table. The table would be a temporary rampart, at least.

"No use, baby," Dolph turned, was lurching back to the charge. Being cheated of his prey made him surly. "What I want I get, see? You think I let a low-down chauffeur beat me to it? Fat chance!" He was pushing the table before him, forcing her backward to be imprisoned against the wall. Involuntarily her hand stole out, fastened about a vase of roses on the table.

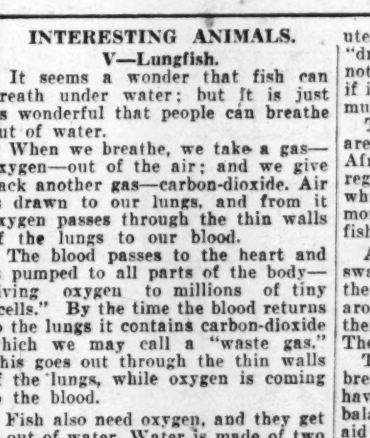

"Stop it!" she cried. "Stop it this minute. Stand back from the table." She raised the vase, aimed it straight at the leering face. He didn't believe she would do it. He was coming on. Thud! The vase flew true to its mark. Crash! It fell to the floor, shattering into fragments. A howl of pain. Dolph was spluttering, cursing, his hand clapped across his eyes. Had she blinded him—the jagged pieces of porcelain? She had taken her aim straight between the glittering black button eyes. The world reeled. Oh, if only he'd stop cursing and take away his hand! There, he'd done it! Thank heaven—he was only blinded by the water, by the impact. The vase had not broken until it struck the floor. Berta's petals dropped from his hair, from his shoulders.

"I told you to stop it," Anne's world righted itself again. She must press her advantage. A volley of oaths. "So that's the racket. Bust up the place. I'll fix you for that. I'll tame you—you!" With a lunge he had overturned the table. Lamp, smoking paraphernalia, bric-a-brac tumbled to the floor. Another lunge. He had her shoulder. She tried to wrench it free. Her uniform—it was being torn off her! A nail file, low and pointed, over her on the chair! If she could reach the chair—she struggled—one more step—the file within her grasp—hateful arms pinning her, smothering her, oaths—heavy, loose lips near her—Carl!

"Dolph! What—" The smothering arms were being torn away from her. She staggered backward, caught her balance, pushed away the veil that shut out her vision. The pudgy little bald man whom Carl called "Mr. Madame" stood in the center of the room, his bandy legs spread apart to support his sudden towering strength. His gnarled arm of a fist raised and clenched, "Swine! Swine!" he kept repeating. The fist and the epithet were for Dolph Hoag who sat, stupidly, on the floor rubbing his chin with his hand. Anne, in a daze, sought her room. Ought she to confide to Carl what had happened? Their camaraderie had been re-established on a basis of coincidence—of sharing the problems of Bois Joli between them. Yet—if she told Carl what had befallen her in Madame's apartment, there would be trouble, another chase, and a serious one. Besides, she had given her word to Madame to be silent. Anne took off the torn uniform and hung it far back in her closet. She'd have to wash herself or there would be gossip.

me to take it—then when I took the dare she began to fight me. I'd been having cocktails—two or three maybe—and she made me mad. If she hadn't dared me I'd never bother her. Why should I—servant?"

"You lie!" Anne's words cracked across the room like bullets. Her face was so pale it was luminous. "So you didn't dare me to kiss you? Oh no! Not at all!"

Button eyes could be venomous. "You're so hot I just looked at you and lost my head. And you expect my aunt to believe that one—to take the word of a servant against her own nephew?"

"Certainly I expect her to take my word. Why shouldn't she? It's the truth." The simplicity of the assertion, the ring of it, had an immediate effect on Madame. "We've had enough fireworks for one day," Mrs. Hoag said, sailing majestically across the room, kicking roses and bric-a-brac out of the way as she progressed. "Effie, you go get into a fresh uniform. Dolph, if I catch you in this room again, no matter when, or if I hear you've bothered the word of my guests, I'll see you don't worm another red cent from me—not a copper. Now you get out and lay low for a while. I'm sick of the sight of you and your servant!"

Madame returned to where the pudgy little man stood, still swinging his fist. "Now, papa," she said, "let's hear about them roses." Her voice was pitched in another key. It was as though she addressed a child, a dearly beloved child who had been fractious and needed soothing. Dolph slunk from the room. Swiftly Anne righted the havoc as best she could, conscious of the low murmuring of her crooked, scolding like a mother pigeon to her suddenly assertive and still ruffled maid. When she had finished, Anne stood a moment at the door. Madame left of her soothing long enough to bark, "Well, Effie?"

"It might be best for me to leave, Madame," Anne said. "I'll go without notice, if you wish." "Do you want to go?" "No, Madame." "Then don't."

"Unpleasant—for why? Us women can look out for ourselves. If he bothers you again don't hit him with a vase. Use a brick or a hammer. No darning, no cracking Dolph's skull. It's too thick."

In spite of tears that were close, Anne had to smile. Madame was certainly a character, and a sturdy one. "That's the ticket," Madame nodded, echoed the smile. "You're a good girl, Effie. I know the good ones when I see 'em. Just don't mention nothing to no one. Bad news travels fast and gets at you quick."

Very well, Madame. Anne, in a daze, sought her room. Ought she to confide to Carl what had happened? Their camaraderie had been re-established on a basis of coincidence—of sharing the problems of Bois Joli between them. Yet—if she told Carl what had befallen her in Madame's apartment, there would be trouble, another chase, and a serious one. Besides, she had given her word to Madame to be silent. Anne took off the torn uniform and hung it far back in her closet. She'd have to wash herself or there would be gossip.

The DEBUNKER By John Harvey Farley, Ph.D.

There are no holes in the air for planes to drop into. What is usually called an "air pocket" is not a pocket at all, but a disturbance in the air currents, due to changes in temperature, ground contour, etc. This word illustrates the fact that fallacies and wrong ideas are constantly coming into being, as new sciences are created and new fields opened. MILLER FACES TOEM TONIGHT

Promoters Roby and Bettis expect a capacity house tonight at the Riverside arena when Sammy Miller, Assyrian, tries his holds on Totem Pole Anderson, the Alaska grappler, in the main match on this program.

These two wrestlers will finish a "grudge" fight which started at this arena two weeks ago, when they came to blows outside the ring. The bout will be a winner-take-all affair, no holds barred except the straight hold.

Honey Boy Hackney, the fast-stopping New Jersey lad, will again make his appearance here, wrestling a formidable opponent in Wayne Coleman, Roswell grappler. The latter claims he is going to stop the winning streak of Hackney.

Glover Powell will grapple with Pat O'Brien, Marietta star, in a 30-minute opening match.

As an act of attraction the promoters have arranged for a colored battle royal.

The Riverside arena is located on the River car line and will now seat 2,000 fans.

KRUEGER SHOOT 71; LEADS OPEN MEET

After a sparkling career as an amateur and member of the American Walker cup team, Mackenzie turned pro in 1932. He's 28 now but 10 years ago he outshot the great Bob Jones on this same Oakmont course to capture the medal in the 1925 national amateur tournament with 145 for 36 holes, only to be beaten in the first round of match play.

A GREAT FINISH.
Mackenzie also staged a grandstand finish today to post his brilliant 72. The former Brown University student shot the last six holes in two under par, bagging birdies on the 13th and 17th. He started off spectacularly, with birdies on the first two holes, but dissipated this advantage by getting himself well bunkered on the sixth and seventh, then three-putting the ninth and tenth greens.

Herman Barrow, Jewish professional, and the two Smiths, Horton and MacDonald, came as close as any of the pursuers to equalling par. All three stumbled on the 18th, with Horton in sight. Barrow and Horton Smith escaped with fives to emerge with 73's. Mac Smith, also needing a four for a 72, bunkered his approach, exploded poorly and took three putts for a six and a 74.

Sarazen, tied for 11th place with nine others at 75, tossed away four or five strokes on the greens. Gene three-putted the third, ninth and 11th. After missing a four-footer and losing another stroke on the 13th the head of his putter dropped off and the gallery roared. He sent back to the shop for another blade and finished strong, except for being trapped on the 17th. If he regain his putting touch, the former champion will be very much in the running. He's still a favorite to win.

OTHERS TIED.
Among those tied with Sarazen were Ky Laffoon, of Chicago; Mortie Dutra, of Detroit, the champion's brother, and Byron Nelson, of Ridgewood, N. J., the young Texan, who missed a great chance for a better score when he faltered after making the turn in 35, 2 under par.

Olaf Dutra's 77 left him deadlocked in 28th place with 17 others, including many of the best-known players in the tournament. Five former open titleholders were in the list—Walter Hagen, of Detroit; Bill Burke, of Cleveland; Johnny Farrell, of Short Hills, N. J.; Willie MacFarlane, of New York, and Johnny Goodman, of Omaha. Keeping them company were Harry Cooper, of Chicago, runner-up to Armour for the title at Oakmont in 1927, and Charlie Yates, of Atlanta, the current intercollegiate king.

FOREIGN THREAT.
The foreign threat, as expected, turned out exclusively to be Sid Brews, the touring South African, who posted a workmanlike 76, and remained in a contending position. The six Japanese failed to break 80. Their scores ranged from 82 to 87 as they found the bunkers their chief source of difficulty. Tommy Miyamoto, playing in his second American championship, and Kanechi Nakamura each had 82 but they were more than half-way down the list.

It required 79 to better to get inside the first 60, indicating the dividing line will be around 158 when the field is reduced after the second round tomorrow.

Only the low 60 and ties for 60th place will play the final 36 holes Saturday. This means that such outstanding performers as Johnny Farrell, of Milwaukee, and Harold (Jug) McSpaden, of Kansas City, Kan., each at 80; Henry Picard, of Hershey, Pa., the year's biggest money winner, with a 79, and Leo Diegel, of Philadelphia, with an 82, must rally to avoid elimination. The same thing applies to George Von Elm, of Los Angeles, 1931 runner-up, who shot an 81.

Play resumes tomorrow at 7:30 a. m. (E. S. T.)

Charlie Yates Posts 77 Score.

Wethered and Partner Win

WORCESTER, Mass., June 6.—(AP)—Joyce Wethered, celebrated English golf star, gave one of the finest exhibitions of her American tour today when she carded a 70 over the long and difficult Worcester Country Club course, pairing with Benny Ayres, of the host club, and defeating Jean Bauer, of Providence, and Jesse Guilford, 5 and 4, in an 18-hole match.

Miss Wethered found the rain-soaked greens treacherous in the early holes, going to the turn in 39 larger because of putts that hung on the lip of the cup. She improved coming back, taking a 37 despite a six on the par four 12th where her drive struck a tree and bounded back into heavy rough.

Miss Wethered and Guilford shared scoring honors with 70's while Ayres had a 79 and Miss Bauer 87.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., June 6.—(AP)—Dickie Dunlap, of Paris, Tenn., entered the semi-finals of the Memphis Country Club's invitation tennis tournament today, upsetting Sun Kie Chinese Davis cup player, 6-4, 0-6, 7-5.

The Paris youth joins another unseeded performer in the semi-finals, Nelson McInich, Kansas City, Kan., who knocked off Arthur Hendrix, Lakeland, Fla., top-seeded, yesterday, blasted J. C. Sanford, Mobile, seeded fourth, off the court in the quarter-finals today. The score was 6-0, 6-1.

Ernest Sutter, New Orleans, seeded second, defeated Clet Metz, Memphis, 6-2, 6-4, and Bob Stewart, Pensacola, Fla., third seed, yesterday. Ed Barrett, of Little Rock, 6-4, 6-2, to enter the semi-finals.

In the women's division, Catherine Wolf, of Elkhardt, Ind., the No. 1 favorite, and Eunice Dean, San Antonio, qualified for the finals. Miss Wolf defeated Evangeline MacLennan, Decatur, Ga., 6-0, 6-3, and Miss Dean eliminated Eli. Cox, Asheville, N. C., 6-3, 6-0.

ATLANTA'S THEATERS

'Public Hero Number 1'
Thriller at the Grand
Front page accounts of the federal government's relentless fight against crime and authentic accounts of gangster methods and gunmen cruelty lend realism and conviction to Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's powerful melodrama, "Public Hero No. 1," with Lionel Barrymore, Jean Arthur, Chester Morris and the distinguished stage actor, Joseph Calleia, who makes his screen debut in this production, which starts today at Loew's Grand theater.

Newspaper readers will recognize the expert method by which "Public Hero No. 1" reproduces on the screen a famous prison break, in which two desperadoes escape jail and make a daring getaway after an exciting race, with members of a prison band in the automobile, so that pursuing guards dare not open fire.

Another actual case inspired the episodes in which a dangerous public enemy resorts to facial surgery to disguise himself from government men during a nationwide man hunt. He is finally spotted in a theater and captured while trying to escape.

Chief Morris is the hero and Jean Arthur is the heroine. Joseph Calleia is seen as the notorious killer and Lionel Barrymore gives a most colorful impersonation as a drunken doctor, confidant of gangsters, who, as he declares, saves their lives only to prepare their bodies to be riddled by police bullets.

Able direction by J. Walter Ruben and a spirited story serve to make this a production of greatest value.

Amateurs To Compete
For Prizes at Capitol
Tonight at 9 o'clock the Capitol, Atlanta's only vaudeville theater, will present another of its popular amateur contests in addition to the regular stage and screen program. Three prizes are offered, first, $75.00; second, $4, and third, a month's pass to the Capitol, good for two persons.

Those who have been selected to appear tonight are Fred R. Kitzler, Lillian Dayton, Tommy and Lois Burton, Virginia Freeland, Betty Anne Vaughn, Louise Thomason, James Wilson, Frances Adams, June Walton and James Wilson.

On the screen, the Capitol offers George O'Brien in "The Cowboy Millionaire," a variety picture that has been drawing large crowds all week. On the stage eight acts of high-class vaudeville are offered by the road show, "Madcap Revue." Twenty-three stage artists are featured together with Enrico Leide and orchestra.

A complete change is made in the Capitol's program, starting Sunday. The new screen feature is "The Florine Dancer," starring Margaret Lindsay, Donald Woods, C. Aubrey Smith and many others. The new stage show, which will come highly recommended, is "Marcan's Surprise Party," with a cast of 25 vaudeville stars including a 14-piece stage band.

George Raft at Fox
In Hammett Thriller
Not since his triumph in "Scarface" has George Raft had a role so admirably suited to his talents as in Paramount's "The Glass Key," the new Dashiell Hammett thriller, which opens at the Fox today.

This newest film from the pen of the man who wrote "The Thin Man" presents Raft as a hard-fisted citizen, a sort of private minister to a city big shot politician, Edward Arnold.

Told in Hammett's inimitable style, the picture blends romance, drama, love interest and a head-banging mystery to furnish unadulterated entertainment.

When the son of a man he is supporting for state office is killed by a mystery try to pin the crime on Arnold. To complicate matters further Arnold is in love with Clara Dodd, the boy's sister and a woman too smart for him.

SEE the Government's grim "men behind the guns" track down and unmask the "rats of civilization". PUBLIC HERO No. 1 reveals how the Federal forces work. We predict that when the Weyerhaeuser kidnapers are caught, the "inside" workings of the Department of Justice men on the case will be similar to what you see in PUBLIC HERO No. 1... a prophetic picture... a terrific picture... a picture every mother, every woman, every man must see!

NOTE: "Manhattan Melodrama" was the picture that helped catch John Dillinger. Loew's Sheridan Theatre, N. Y. C., discovered one of the Lindbergh ransom notes that helped convict Hauptmann. Now PUBLIC HERO No. 1 may help solve the Weyerhaeuser case!

New Shirley Temple Film at Paramount
Shirley Temple, who has, in the words of Irvin S. Cobb, "made more people happy and made more children laugh than any child her age in the history of the world," is here again. Her new Fox Film picture, "Our Little Girl," starts its engagement today at the Paramount theater.

This is said to be Shirley's most touching picture. She plunges into an emotional adventure as she bravely meets a bewildering crisis while those who are nearest and dearest to her group in the shadows of misunderstanding.

"Our Little Girl" is said to have appeal for young and old. For the young there is a thrilling circus sequence. Producer Edward Butcher

By FRANK MACMILLAN.

NEW YORK, June 6.—(P)—Quiet session on the New York Stock Exchange today. Many traders withdrew to the sidelines, volume was curtailed and price changes mostly were a bit on the down-side.

Metals, baking stocks, and some of the issues likely to benefit from the coming of warm weather, such as Coca-Cola, Owens-Illinois Glass and Anchor Cap, were able to move contrary to the trend for fair gains. There was also continued evidence of the search for income, with shares of the high-priest dividend-payers and preferreds were accumulated at advancing prices.

Bonds turned in a better performance than stocks, especially in the rails, and with United States governments showing fair fractional gains. The day's best levels, however, were reached at the close, but did nothing to help along sentiment, but cotton was better.

In the Chicago market wheat was a little less than steady, with the close 3-8 of a cent higher, and corn was 3-8 of a cent higher. The improvement in cotton ranged from 35 to 55 cents a bale, and was shaded by the metals, with leading companies reducing quotations .10 of a cent a pound.

To most Wall Street observers the near-by market outlook appeared rather obscure.

Volume Drops.

Traders' attempts to sort out the likely effects of new developments appeared to account largely for the decline in turnover, which dropped to 476,000 shares in the day's trading on the stock exchange. Their cautious attitude was reflected in the recession of the Associated Press average of 60 stocks to 42.0, off .3 of a point.

One important section of the industrial field revealed during its course in the new codeless set-up, which leading steel makers voted to retain the old steel code provisions regarding labor and competitive practices. The matter of open-pit-rolling was left for later determination, since third-quarter price schedules have already been fixed.

In the variety chain store field two units reported during the day lower sales for May. Woolworth's reported a decline of 1.2 per cent. Montgomery Ward's mail-order and retail business, however, was up 1.2 per cent. Stocks of all three companies moved narrowly.

Steel Shares Sag.

Shares of leading steel companies were generally lower, but not more so than the general run of the list. The same was true of the majority of the utilities.

Although closely watched with Wall Street expectation, banking attention was focused on the statement of the Bank of France revealing losses of gold in the week ended May 20, of more than 4,800,000 francs, bringing the total outflow of yellow metal from that country since the movement began on a large scale at the close of March to approximately 11,000,000 francs.

The French franc improved at the close to end of 3-4 of a cent higher at 6.60 cents, although during most of the day it ruled only a shade above Wednesday's close. The cabinet muddle in France was still an unsolved problem as exchange and foreign trading to finish for the day, the pound sterling lost 7-8 of a cent at $4.94 1-2.

Some of the active issues, which moved against the trend for gains of major fractions to around 2 points included Owens-Illinois Glass at 100, Air Reduction at 135 1-2, Evans Products at 18, Loomis-Wiles at 30 1-2, Ferro de Pisco at 35 1-2, Howe Sound at 49 7-8, United States Smelting at 107 1-2 and Pullman at 40 1-2. Coca-Cola was 4 points higher at 120, and losses of fractions to 2 points or more were chalked up for Eastman Kodak at 141 1-2, Chrysler at 44, American Telephone at 124 1-2, Liggett & Myers at 111, Public Service of New Jersey at 34 and Santa Fe at 40 1-2.

Federal Land Bank Bonds

NEW YORK, June 6.—(P)—Federal land bank bonds were generally higher today, with most issues advancing 1/8 to 1/4 of a point.

Some of the active issues, which moved against the trend for gains of major fractions to around 2 points included Owens-Illinois Glass at 100, Air Reduction at 135 1-2, Evans Products at 18, Loomis-Wiles at 30 1-2, Ferro de Pisco at 35 1-2, Howe Sound at 49 7-8, United States Smelting at 107 1-2 and Pullman at 40 1-2. Coca-Cola was 4 points higher at 120, and losses of fractions to 2 points or more were chalked up for Eastman Kodak at 141 1-2, Chrysler at 44, American Telephone at 124 1-2, Liggett & Myers at 111, Public Service of New Jersey at 34 and Santa Fe at 40 1-2.

Betty Serves Grateful Husband Mint Sauce and Roast Lamb.

By FLORENCE La GANKE.

Betty wanted to try a roast of spring lamb. She never had roasted a leg before and she felt rather dubious. But the butcher assured her that she would not find it difficult. "My advice to you, Madam, is this—take the meat home, wipe it with a damp cloth. I will have trimmed off any bits of muttony fat. So you won't need to be afraid of the flavor. Have the oven heated to 450 degrees. Put the meat into a roaster setting the meat on a trivet or rack in the roaster. Do not cover the roaster and do not put any water in the pan.

When the meat has been in for 20 minutes and is sizzling, turn the fire down to 300 degrees. Salt the meat during roasting if you want to do so. There will be a little liquid in the pan. You may use this for basting the meat but if you place the roast with the fatty part uppermost that melting fat will do all the basting that is required. Allow 30 minutes per pound or use the meat thermometer and take the meat out when the register shows well done.

Betty had always eaten mint sauce but never given it a minute's thought as to where it came from or how it was made. She looked askance at the bunch of mint which came with the roast. But Nancy helped her out. "Wash the leaves and pick them from the stems. Put them in a bowl and chop until fine. Measure about one-quarter cup vinegar and one-eighth cup water and one-quarter cup sugar in a saucepan. Bring to the boil and then add the mint leaves. Let them simmer or steep on top of the warming oven while the meat is roasting. The sauce will be ready when it has turned a dark green, when the leaves are almost shriveled and the liquid is quite syrupy. Serve hot or cold.

Nancy's leaflet on "Inexpensive Meat Dishes" will be a help to you. Send a stamped self-addressed envelope to Nancy Page care of The Atlanta Constitution.

Anna Sten Says She Quit $5,000 Job for Her Meals
NEW YORK, June 6.—(UPI)—Anna Sten, Russian actress, today declared she broke her $5,000-a-week contract with Samuel Goldwyn because "I refused to become a flat-chested American screen star."

"I was supposed to diet and get thin," she said.

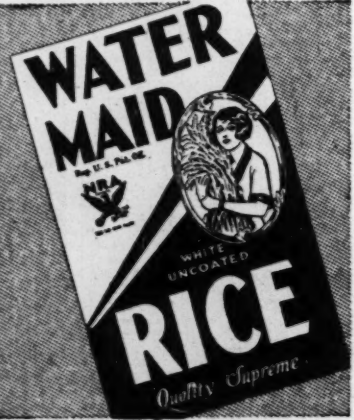

The Ukrainian actress denied there had been an open break between her and Goldwyn, her "discoverer."

"I have the greatest respect for him," she said. "But we just don't understand each other."

ROOSEVELT PRESSURE ON UTILITY BILL SEEN

Wheeler Leaves White House Confident Measure Will Pass Unchanged.

WASHINGTON, June 6.—(AP)—Senator Wheeler marched out of the White House today to meet foes of his bill to abolish or reorganize public utility holding companies, uttering a flat prediction that "the bill will pass, just about as it is written."

He declined to say positively he had received a blanket endorsement from President Roosevelt of the bill's present form, but clearly he displayed a more jubilant attitude about its prospects than since it had bumped against a determined move in the senate to send it back to committee to temper the more drastic provisions.

He and Senator Barkley, democrat, New York, spent a half hour at the White House early in the day to discuss the bill. The conference followed an announcement by several democratic senators, including Tridings, Bailey, Dieterich, Clark and Smith, that the bill must be redrafted before they could support it. They referred particularly to the title calling for reorganization or dissolution of holding companies by 1942.

Admittedly worried last night, Wheeler apparently had shed his fears today. Two attacks on the measure delivered on the senate floor brought no reply from him immediately except for one statement to Senator Schall that the Minnesota republican was wrong in saying the printed report had been held from other members of the committee for two days.

In a lengthy address, Schall assailed the measure as "dictatorship ex-

Culbertson on Contract

By ELY CULBERTSON, World's Champion Player and Greatest

Find the Setting Trick.

The first most important consideration in defensive play is always to find the setting tricks. In seeking to establish these tricks, every possible precaution is taken. Good defensive play is largely a matter of reconstruction which leads to reconstruction of unseen hands and a campaign based upon the probable nature of these hands.

A play which is not obvious but which should be learned by every player caused the defeat of declarer's contract in the following hand:

North, dealer.
North-South vulnerable.

1—In most cases three honor-tricks are required for an opening bid, except when the hand contains a rebidable suit. An exception is made, however, in the case of hands which are strong in the major suits.

2—Because of his vulnerability, South must be charged with over-calling. Despite the minimum nature of his hand, East must show his second biddable suit when it can be done at the range of one.

The Play.
In spite of West's diamond bid, North chose the four of diamonds as his opening lead. South won the trick with the ace. South now could hardly consider a diamond continuation because West was marked with a five-card suit and it was very unlikely the setting tricks could be found in that suit. The logical shift was therefore to hearts. But in leading hearts South had to consider that five tricks were necessary to defeat the contract. Since dummy had hearts stopped, the contract could not be defeated unless North could find an entry. If North had an entry that would be a second trick, and if three heart tricks could be assured, the game would be saved. To take care of all these possibilities, South led the three of hearts rather than one of his honors. This dummy was allowed to win with the nine.

West now counted his tricks and found that he could win three in spades, two in clubs and one in diamonds, in addition to the heart trick he had already won. Two additional winners were required and they could be established in either the club or the diamond suit. Guessing the heart situation, West sought to establish clubs, hoping he could duck a round of that suit to South and thus keep North out of the lead. While he had the established diamonds more easily, it would have been necessary to let North in; whereas this could be avoided if South held either of the missing club honors. Unfortunately, North held both the heart and jack of clubs and could not be kept out of the lead. When finally he won a club trick, he led his last remaining heart. Dummy had been rescued to the doubleton king of hearts, which made South's ace, queen and jack all good. With five tricks thus won, North and South defeated three no-trump.

Copen-blue swiss dotted in navy made the original. The navy tied scarf is flattering.

Striped or checked seersucker, pique voile, shirting cottons, linen, handkerchief-finish lawn prints, tub pastel silks, etc., are other fascinating mediums for this easily made model.

Style No. 865 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18 years, 36, 38 and 40 inches bust. Size 16 requires 3-5/8 yards of 36-inch material with 1-4 yard of 36-inch contrasting.

Our Spring Fashion Book is beautifully illustrated in color. Price of book 15 cents. Wrap coin carefully.

South eventually got into a contract of four no-trump in the hand above. Can he fulfill his contract?

Mr. Culbertson will send to any reader who will enclose a self-addressed, stamped (5-cent) envelope with his request, a booklet containing the new rules, discussing changes in the rules and discussing the etiquette of Contract. The request should be addressed to Ely Culbertson, in care of The Atlanta Constitution.

pressed in mathematical terms." He said what is called socialism in Russia, fascism in Italy and nazism in Germany was the same thing Undersecretary Tugwell here "calls the New Deal."

The Minnesotan added an appeal that the measure be sent to the judiciary committee for a complete overhauling.

Earlier, Senator Metcalf, republican, Rhode Island, preceded him with an appeal that the congress "not destroy the savings of millions of our citizens."

The New England senator saw in the measure also a step toward nationalization of the industry. He linked his attack against the bill with an indictment of the AAA program.

Warning against the trend he felt the bill indicated, however, Metcalf said:

"From the past acts of this administration we might well assume that we are moving with alarming rapidity toward government ownership of all utilities.

OWEN MADDEN NEARS END OF PAROLE PERIOD
NEW YORK, June 6.—(AP)—The parole period of Owen Victor Madden, to whose control the police long sought to trace the flow of prohibition era beer in New York, will end June 15 and he will be a free man. He was under parole in connection with a manslaughter charge dating back to 1915. He was returned to prison in July, 1933, for violation of parole and released a year later. Since, the records of the parole board show, he has scrupulously observed the restrictions imposed upon him.
